Delegates in Empress Traffic Jam

The usually dignified lobby of Empress Hotel was so crowded this morning that traffic signs had to be installed to control flow of movement of more than 600 delegates and vistors as the 34th annual convention of Canadian Good Roads Association opened. Convention will continue through Friday, closing with a fishing derby Saturday. Three Quebec delegates good-naturedly refused to criticize sign in English: left to right, Roland Jodoin and E. Dagenais, Montreal; A. Pigeon, Quebec City. (More pictures, stories, Pages 15 and 21. Times photo.)

Club Drinkers May Pay New Liquor Tax First

10% on Each Drink Planned Under Government's Scheme

By GORDON FORBES

British Columbians will pay a new 10 per cent sales tax on drinks by the glass under the province's new liquor system.

Half the proceeds from the tax will be distributed to municipalities which have voted for liquor outlets. "Dry" municipalities will get none.

The surprise legislation providing for the tax was introduced in the Legislature Tuesday night by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who is acting finance minister.

The tax will be charged on beer, wine and hard liquor sold in restaurants, cocktail lounges and night clubs.

The 10 per cent tax also will be charged on "all purchases" in licensed premises which provide entertainment (cabarets and night clubs) in lieu of the 3 per cent sales tax.

This means the tax will be charged on drinks, meals, cigarettes, etc., in such premises.

The tax, as far as night clubs and cabarets are concerned, will be imposed only during the time when entertainment or dancing facilities are provided.

Thus this part of the tax will hit mainly those people having a "night out."

May Be Law by Week-End

First people to feel the pinch of the tax will be those who belong to so-called proprietory clubs or membership clubs.

These clubs must start charging the 10 per cent tax on beer, wine and hard liquor as soon as the bill becomes law which may be the end of this week, unless the government, by regulation, decides to postpone the effective date.

A round of drinks for four people at the same price, instead of costing $1.40, will cost $1.54.

If a total bill in a night club for drinks, meals and incidentals came to $25, the tax would increase the bill to $27.50.

This is because the tax in night clubs and cabarets, and any place providing entertainment and dancing facilities, applies to the total bill—everything purchased in the establishment. In other establishments such as restaurants and cocktail lounges the tax is charged only on the cost of the liquor.

The tax may have the effect of wiping out cover charges or entrance fees in night spots.

It is expected many night clubs will abolish the charge and make up for it in prices inside. Ending admission charges will entice more people into the night spots, proprietors believe.

This means the government will lose the 17½ per cent amusement tax revenue on the entrance fee, but will make it up on tax revenue from sales of liquor and food inside.

To Replace 3% Sales Tax

Under the new system, liquor outlets will not pay a 3 per cent sales tax on their purchases from the Liquor Control Board.

But the outlets will act as collectors for the government by charging the 10 per cent sales tax on liquor sold in their establishments.

Under the new liquor act they can force a local option plebiscite on new liquor outlets simply by asking for it.

But will they take such action when they may be throwing away sorely needed revenue which would accrue from the 10 per cent tax?

It's a fairly sure bet the municipalities, whose coffers are in a depressed state, will be reluctant to place any obstacle in the way of more outlets—and more revenue.

All this adds up to a rocky road for the temperance interests who will find it much more difficult to convince municipal councils they should oppose more outlets.

Anti-liquor groups, however, will welcome the new tax if it acts as a deterrent to excessive drinking.

The tax will make drinks quite costly. Drinking by the glass, experience has shown, is an expensive way to imbibe anyway. One reason is that retail outlets must purchase their liquor from the Liquor Control Board at retail prices. Another factor contributing to high costs is that regulations require premises to be of a high standard, necessitating considerable financial outlay by proprietors.

It all adds up to the cost, and the 10 per cent tax will be just another boost.

One of the reasons for the new tax, it was explained unofficially, was to help municipalities offset the extra costs they face in policing outlets.

The tax is brought in as an amendment to the Social Security and Municipal Aid Tax Act.

The bill also provides for changing of the act's title to "An Act to Provide for the Imposition and Collection of a Tax on the Purchase and Use of Tangible Personal Property to Provide Funds in Aid of Social Services." In short, the Social Services Tax Act.

Restaurant Men Make Protest

At Vancouver today a spokesman for the B.C. Restaurant Association voiced a protest against the government's proposal to impose a 10 per cent tax on liquor by the glass.

Commenting on the bill introduced in the Legislature Tuesday, calling for a 10 per cent tax on liquor sold in night clubs and cabarets, Phil Edgcumbe, executive secretary of the B.C. section of the Canadian Restaurant Association, said:

"I don't see how we can absorb the tax when we have to pay retail prices for liquor . . . It'll certainly keep people away." He also predicted the tax would prompt "plenty of protests."

VARIED COMMENT

Reaction from municipal leaders in Victoria area was varied.

Mayor Claude Harrison and Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt welcomed the proposal but Reeve Joseph Casey of Saanich said he wasn't sure whether it was good or bad, and Reeve Archie Gibbs of Oak Bay said he couldn't offer comment because he didn't know the first thing about it.

He said the resulting revenue would be "welcomed heartily" by the city.

He reiterated his earlier opinion that the liquor outlets would be used mainly by the rich but added: "The price for drinks by the glass was going to be high anyway, a few cents extra won't hurt. And after all, liquor is a luxury."

"My main criticism of the act is that it does not provide for bonding of licensees. Those who obtain licenses should have to post a stiff bond to guarantee they run their premises properly."

Reeve Wurtele said the tax would be welcomed by municipalities but was not overly enthusiastic about it.

"I agree with the mayor," said Reeve Wurtele, "it's nice to be able to look forward to a little extra revenue. But this is not the sort of revenue a municipality can bank on for all times."

He felt restrictions and regulations led to abuses.

Reeve Gibbs said he could offer no comment on the liquor tax.

Mr. Gibbs, who is a member of the Legislature, said from his office at the Legislative Buildings: "I don't know the first thing about this bill. It was introduced last night at about 8.45 along with a lot of other bills and the House sat until quarter to one. This morning I didn't have a chance to study it because I had to attend a committee meeting."

M. F. Hunter, president of the Greater Victoria Citizens' Association, said the government's proposal was an acknowledgement that it expected difficulty in controlling and regulating outlets. He felt what money a municipality derived from the tax would have to be devoted to extra police requirements.

LIQUOR TAX HIGHLIGHTS

1. A 10 per cent tax on beer, wine and hard liquor sold in restaurants, cocktail lounges and night clubs.
2. A 10 per cent tax on food, cigarettes and incidentals, in addition to liquor, purchased in night clubs and cabarets.
3. Purchases in beer parlors and liquor stores unaffected.
4. Proprietory clubs and membership clubs now in existence may be first to pay new tax.
5. Half proceeds from new tax to be distributed among municipalties who vote for retail outlets. "Dry" municipalities get nothing.

Reds Received U.S. Army Data McCarthy Says

Top Secret Documents 'Turned Up' In Russian-Occupied Germany

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy said today a number of top-secret army documents dealing with radar and others matters "turned up" in the Russian section of Germany and "were used by the Communists."

This followed a statement by Senator Everett M. Dirksen (Rep., Ill.), Tuesday, that 26 of 57 top secret documents missing from the army signal corps radar laboratory at Fort Monmouth, N.J., were found in the Russian zone.

In Washington, the army said it had no information on the finding of any such papers in Germany.

McCarthy is chairman of the Senate permanent investigations sub-committee conducting closed hearings in New York into the possibility of Communist subversion at Fort Monmouth.

"We have completely convincing testimony that some of those documents on radar and other matters did turn up in East Berlin, but as to the number, I will never comment," McCarthy told reporters prior to today's sub-committee session.

Radar is used as part of a defense network to detect the approach of enemy aircraft.

Two of five civilian technical experts who were employed at Fort Monmouth were scheduled for questioning by the sub-committee today.

They are Hyam Gerber Yamins, a radar specialist who was assigned by the army signal corps to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as a liaison officer, and Harold Ducore, an electronics engineer.

Defense Secretary Charles Wilson, asked Tuesday in Washington whether he thought espionage was involved at Fort Monmouth or whether the matter concerned security leaks, declared:

SNACKS TAX DUE TO DIE BY WEEK-END

By next week people who eat in restaurants will escape the three per cent sales tax on meals up to $1. Now they pay on everything over 50 cents.

The increase in tax exemption on meals is contained in amendments to the Sales Tax Act introduced in the Legislature Tuesday night, and is expected to become law when the House prorogues this week-end.

Sentenced to Hang

CAIRO (Reuters) — Three Egyptians, two of them government officials, today were sentenced to death by hanging for spying for a foreign power.

Two Children Among 44 Air Crash Victims

FRANKFURT, Germany (CP) —A Belgian airliner crashed in flames just after takeoff from here today and all 44 persons aboard were killed.

There had been earlier reports that the twin-engined Convair was carrying 48 persons. But the operators, Sabena Airlines, announced in Brussels that there were 44 persons—40 passengers and four crew—aboard when it crashed near the village of Kelsterbach, about two miles from Frankfurt airport.

Two children were reported to have been among the passengers.

DIED INSTANTLY

The crash and fire brought almost instant death to those aboard.

An eyewitness said the plane crashed and burned shortly after clearing the runway. The plane was bound for Brussels. It had arrived here earlier from Salsburg, Austria.

The crash was not far from the spot where a Dutch airlines plane went down March 22, 1952, killing 45 in Germany's worst air disaster.

Atomic Blast Soon

SYDNEY, Australia (UP) — Britain may explode an atomic weapon in the centre of Australia some time within the next two days, it was reported here today.

Non-Aggression Guarantee Said Ready for Reds

LONDON (UP)—A note to be sent to Moscow this week-end by the United States, Great Britain and France will make the first formal offer to discuss guarantees to Russia against any future German aggression, authoritative sources said today.

The note was drafted here by deputies. It will be sent to Russia after it is finally approved by U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Secretary Anthony Eden and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault at their meeting starting here Friday.

The French cabinet approved the text of the note today, a United Press Paris dispatch said, and at the same time agreed to shelve for the present the idea of any pressure for a five-power conference including Communist China.

The anti-aggression guarantee will highlight the Western note, which is in reply to a Soviet note of Sept. 28 on the question of holding a meeting of foreign ministers on German and Austrian treaties.

WAS CHURCHILL PLAN

It would be the first official offer coming out of a proposal first made by Prime Minister Winston Churchill last May for a new "Locarno" type non-aggression pact to assure Russian security against a European army including German troops.

Russian Intervention May Calm Trieste Row

By HELEN FISHER

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UP)—Russia's intervention in the Trieste crisis may lead to a friendly solution of the issue between Marshal Tito and the United States and Britain, an authoritative informant said today.

The Russian move in taking Trieste to the United Nations in New York in support of Yugoslavia was unwelcome in Belgrade.

It may boomerang and lead to a solution outside the UN.

Yugoslav leaders do not want Russia in the Trieste dispute and they still want to co-operate with the West.

It is still indicated here, as it was before the present crisis, that Tito would be willing to let Italy have effective control of Trieste city and possibly of all of Zone A which the United States and Britain have decided to give that country.

TENSION MOUNTS

But Tito would want firm guarantees against further Italian expansion, and would want a settlement which would not appear to mean a Yugoslav diplomatic defeat.

Tension still mounted here as regards Italy. The official news agency Tanjug asserted that two Italian armored units moved up to the border of Zone A Tuesday night in the Gorizia region.

(In Rome the Italian foreign ministry emphatically denied the report as a "deliberate falsification by Yugoslav authorities and an attempt to establish a cover for their own activity".)

Vacation Over, Royal Family Returns to London

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh, their two children and Princess Margaret returned by train to London today at the end of their summer vacation in the Scottish Highlands.

The Queen's first major engagement is the state opening of Parliament Nov. 3, at which she will deliver the Speech From the Throne.

Princess Margaret also appeared fit and healthy in her black and white Donegal tweed suit. With it she wore a black velvet cap.

Eskimo Halfback Drafted by Army

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimo halfback sensation, Billy Vessels from Oklahoma, is scheduled to report to a U.S. army draft board at Great Falls, Mont., for a physical examination Nov. 27—one day before the Grey Cup final in Toronto.

Presumably, if Eskimos entered the Grey Cup final, Vessels would take his physical Nov. 27 and then be flown east to Toronto for the classic the following day. (See sport page story.)

HIGH OVER BURRARD INLET

Police Fight Deranged Father in Midnight Fog

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 30-year-old father of two children was captured in a midnight struggle on a bridge girder 200 feet above the entrance to Burrard Inlet.

Police reports disclosed today how two officers and a sailor fought with the man on the span of Lions Gate Bridge, choked with the heaviest fog of the season.

Constable Don Brown and Cecil Paul answered a radio call to the bridge just before midnight Tuesday, but were unable to spot a suspect who had been reported "acting suspiciously."

Paul, who holds the George Medal for bravery, went to the north end of the span, and Brown took the south end. They walked toward the centre.

Near the span's centre, 200 feet above the water, Brown saw the man outside the bridge railing, standing on a girder. Approaching swiftly and silently, he threw an arm around the man's throat and shouted for Paul.

The suspect fought back and the two police officers were unable to haul him to safety until a naval reservist, T. A. Bradfield, ran to their aid.

The man, who told police he was upset over domestic difficulties, was held for mental examination.

30 Horses, 5 Barns Burned in Quebec Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — A spectacular early morning fire today destroyed 30 horses in five barns at the Richelieu race track. No one was reported injured.

The horses were trapped when the fire quickly swept through the wooden barns. Approximately 200 horses were freed by trainers and stable hands. The horses stampeded into nearby fields and roamed neighboring highways.

DRESSEN QUITS DODGERS OVER CONTRACT ROW

BROOKLYN (AP) — Manager Charlie Dressen and the Brooklyn Dodgers split today over terms of a new contract and the peppery pilot who guided the Dodgers to the National League pennants the last two years announced: "I won't manage the team next year." Dressen, 55, said he had asked originally for a three-year contract but would be willing to settle for two. He could have held his job but on a one-year term basis only. State Funeral For Mrs. Rolston

A state funeral will be held Friday for Education Minister Mrs. Tilly Rolston, who died in Vancouver Monday, Premier W. A. C. Bennett announced.

The funeral will be held at St. Andrew's Wesley Church in Vancouver at 2 p.m.

At the same time, the House will probably be recessed during the afternoon Friday to allow members to attend the funeral.

Members of the Legislature stood in solemn tribute to Mrs. Rolston when the House sat Tuesday afternoon.

Gay . . . colorful . . . fantastic! These are words to describe Nagasaki during Ot-Suwa-Matsori, one of the most distinctive religious festivals in Japan held Oct. 7, 8 and 9 each year.

And no westerner, whether located in Japan permanently, or just a visitor, wishes to miss it.

In the narrow lanes of open faced shops slender bamboo trees have been placed, their delicate branches meeting in an archway overhead. Lanterns hang on long poles. Miniature paper parasols deck the street lights.

And the drums beat incessantly. Calling every one to forget dignity and follow "Mikoshi," the gold and red portable shrines, drawn by young people of Nagasaki, dressed in medieval costumes of rich silks and satins, their faces painted white, with touches of black and gold.

We've been following the drums for two days now. Vancouverite Mary Russell and I. We've danced a bit . . . tried to sing . . . we've smiled and nodded . . . and even talked . . . and we've been accepted as the people of Nagasaki accept all "foreigners" who crowd their city at festival time.

Burnaby Ceremonies Thursday Mark Oil Pipeline Opening

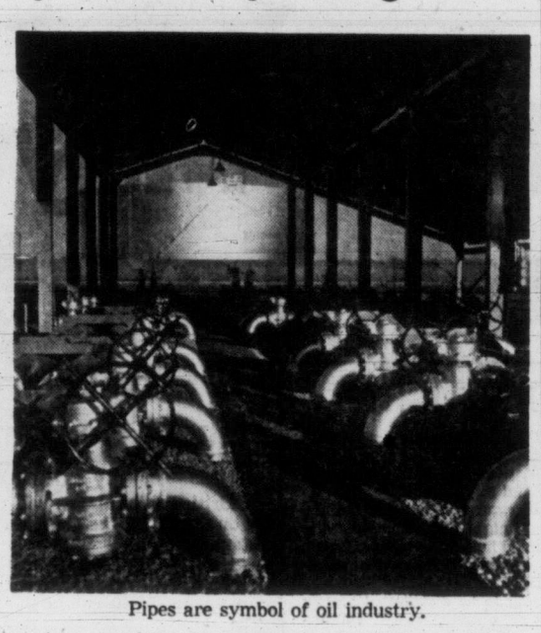
By LESLIE FOX

Tomorrow in Burnaby official ceremonies will mark the opening of the Trans Mountain Pipeline—a 718-mile long, 24-inch diameter, conduit which brings the rich oil of Alberta flowing over the Rockies and down the Pacific slope to tidewater.

In some ways the completion of the pipeline has as much significance to industrial development of this coast as the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway 68 years ago, although it lacks the drama.

Last week Imperial Oil Limited, the "Mr. Big" of the Canadian oil industry, showed a party of B.C. news and radio men what has made this $90,000,000 line possible. They spent three days on a whirlwind tour of every phase of the northern Alberta oil industry.

To outline here all the things they saw would be impossible. It can only be said that what has been accomplished in the short space of six years and eight months is absolutely staggering to the imagination.



Pipes are symbol of oil industry.

For it is only since February 13, 1947, when Imperial Leduc No. 1 blew into production that oil has forged into the forefront as one of Canada's top industries.

Since then some $720,000,000 has been poured into the exploration for oil and development of wells.

More than 3,000 wells have been drilled and the number of producers has been raised from 393 (the dying Turner Valley field) up to the amazing total of 3,976.

The known oil reserves have jumped from a comparatively insignificant 72,000,000 barrels up to 1,680,000,000 barrels, and daily production from 20,000 to 184,000 barrels.

Everything in northern Alberta is timed in two periods—BL (before Leduc) and AL (after Leduc). The two periods are as unlike as black and white and have transformed Edmonton into one of the top industrial centres of the nation.

The opening of the mountain pipeline tomorrow symbolizes, in fact, the "coming of age" for the oil industry of Canada. For now the black gold of Alberta is flowing to both sides of Canada. Already it is the basis for new petro-chemical industries. Canada is now putting the vast energy of its oil reservoir to the multiple practical uses it has in bettering the life of the nation.

That this could have been accomplished in the space of less than seven years is baffling.

Besides the actual drilling of the wells—in itself a terrific accomplishment — there have been miles and miles of gathering pipelines laid, establishment of batteries to collect the oil from groups of wells, then the trunk lines to the refineries and the main pipeline terminals, the construction of the new refineries, the construction of a gas conservation plant to extract the valuable butane and propane for industrial purposes and then the domestic gas along for householders.

And what has this meant to the economy of Canada as a whole.

To begin with in 1946, only seven years ago Canada produced only 9.3% of its oil needs. Everything else had to be imported, mostly paid for in U.S. dollars.

Today Canada produces enough oil to supply 44.1% of its needs. It is estimated that in the intervening period some $700,000,000 in outgoing U.S. currency has been saved. It has been one of the big factors in keeping Canada's dollar at a premium to the U.S.

What the future holds anyone can guess. Oil means industry. Already, near Edmonton, this is demonstrated by the $70,000,000 cellulose acetate plant of the Canadian Chemical Company, now in operation to produce fine acetate fibre for the clothing mills of the nation.

British Columbia has a special interest in this plant, for it is here that the cellulose from the big Port Edwards plant near Prince Rupert is combined with butane, extracted from gas to produce a new yarn that may revolutionize textiles.

Next step along this development road, from B.C.'s standpoint, is the Westcoast Transmission's line to bring gas to the coast.

It may be within the next month or two that the federal power commission of the United States makes the final decision that will give this the green light.

Then another era for B.C. will open, based on the slimy black petroleum that lies a mile beneath the surface of Alberta's grain fields.

Turnpike Killer Suspect Accuses Pal

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UP) —John Wable was to be returned to Pennsylvania today to face charges he is the "phantom slayer" who killed two truck drivers on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Since his arrest near here Sunday night for robbery, the 24-year-old Ohiopyle, Pa., resident has steadfastly maintained that another man, not he, committed the Turnpike murders last July.

However, Pennsylvania authorities appeared to discount Wable's story that he lent his gun to a counterfeiter named Parks before the murders and got it back afterwards.

SHIP OWNERS 'MOTH BALL' ENTIRE FLEET

MONTREAL (BUP)—Operators of strikebound Canadian ships prepared today to take the most drastic step ever taken in a maritime dispute—the layoff of officer personnel and the complete tie-up of their ships in preparation for a long strike.

"This drastic step has only been taken after careful consideration of the facts as we are faced with them," the shipowners' negotiating committee said in a prepared statement. "We had to consider the welfare of the deck and engine room officers who have been faithful employees of our ships, but we found that with the unrealistic attitude adopted by the Seafarers' International Union that we must prepare for a long strike.

"The decision to retain only watchkeeping personnel aboard was a difficult one to make but we were left with no other alternative."

The strike started 18 days ago, tying up 16 ships here and in Atlantic coastal ports. The committee estimated that more than 400 officers eventually would be affected.

"This could definitely be the last nail in the Canadian merchant marine coffin," the statement said.

TORONTO (BUP) — Formation of a national television news service to serve Canadian television stations was announced last night by A. D. Dunton, chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's board of governors.

Pickets Stop Scabs, 20 Fighters Arrested

HAMILTON (CP) — Police, pickets and workers attempting to enter the strike-bound plant of Wallace Barnes Co. Ltd. today clashed in a 20-minute free-for-all.

No one was reported seriously hurt. Nearly a score of strikers and others were arrested.

LOVE CONQUERS ALL

Make-Believe Japanese Princess Keeps Her Man

TOKYO (UP)—An American airman said today he will marry his Japanese "princess" next month even though her title may be of the make-believe variety.

Airman 1/C Peter de Stefano, 27, said the disclosure that pretty Michiko Tsukasas, 23, had exaggerated slightly in claiming she was Emperor Hirohito's second cousin had not swayed him from his love for her.

"I love her," de Stefano said. "We are going to be married Nov. 15."

Back home in Boston, de Stefano's elated parents revealed the romance in announcing they were traveling to Tokyo for the wedding.

Their revelation that their son had told them his fiance was a blood relative of the emperor rocked Japan.

An Imperial household spokesman denied there was "any such female" as Michiko Tsukasa on Hirohito's family tree.

EX-COUNT'S DAUGHTER

All the information available added up to the possibility she was the daughter of a former count, who lost his title after the Second World War.

Although de Stefano said he planned to marry Michiko exactly one week from tomorrow, he still had not applied for necessary papers from the air force. Paper work usually takes three to four months.

He said, however, he planned to marry her in Shinto rites, which will establish their ceremony as legal in the Japanese religion. Shinto rites are not recognized by the U.S. government.

Police Search Jagan Files; Strikes Spreading

GEORGETOWN (UP)—British Guiana authorities today checked documents seized in raids on the headquarters of the leftist People's Progressive Party and homes of its leaders for evidence of Communist activity in this strike-ridden South American colony.

The raids were carried out Tuesday by local security forces, supported by British troops. Some 20 places in Georgetown and 15 in Buxton village, believed the centre of the colony's Communist activities, were entered and searched.

The raiders met no resistance and there were no arrests.

A strike by sugar workers in protest against the presence of British troops was reported spreading. The strike was called by deposed Prime Minister Dr. Cheddi Jagan, and his American-born wife, Janet, who visited the plantations personally to urge workers to walk out.

Latest reports said more than half of the workers on plantations stayed away from their jobs.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UP) —Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill will formally be announced Thursday as winner of this year's $33,840 Nobel prize for literature, according to reliable sources.

Sources close to the Nobel Literary Committee of the Swedish Academy said it named the 79-year-old statesman whose Second World War memoirs have been hailed as writing of the highest distinction in addition to their value of contemporary history.

The formal announcement will be made by the Swedish Academy Thursday. King Gustaf will present the award on Dec. 10.

RATHER 'CHAR THAN BAR'

Dry Ranks Divided On New Liquor Laws

Will of Majority Tempers Legislative Attack On Proposed New Alcohol Outlets in B.C.

Mrs. Lydia Arsens (SC, Victoria) told the Legislature Tuesday the new liquor laws haven't changed her stand that she'd "rather char than bar."

The only woman member of the House was following up her election statement that she didn't want liquor sold in her own restaurant.

"But people voted in favor of a new law so I must respect the wishes of the majority," she stated.

She regretted the government is going to allow restaurants to sell beer. They should only be permitted to sell wine.

"Leave the beer in the beer parlors," she said. "Wine is alright in restaurants because it hasn't the objectionable smell of beer. That smell permeates the air and lowers the standard of eating places."

The member said local option votes should require a 60 or 65 per cent majority to pass.

Mrs. Arsens was one of several "dries" who spoke in the two-hour debate which finally gave second reading to the liquor bill.

She wished the House could have heard the president of the Canadian Restaurant Association give his views on the effect of Ontario's new liquor laws.

"They say if Ontario had a chance they'd throw out their new system," she stated. "The young people are drinking more and the drinking in rooms hasn't been curtailed. These men told us the sad results. It's nothing to see street brawls at closing time."

Hugh Shantz (SC, North Okanagan), who said he was a "dry," and didn't know what "the stuff" tastes like, said he'd support the bill because he's elected to represent the majority of the people.

He favored a heavy tax on liquor.

Bottle Sale Must Be Curtailed

Gordon Gibson (Lib., Lillooet), who made no bones about the fact he was no stranger to liquor, said the persons who were kept away from liquor by their parents are the ones who end up drinking the most.

He said the government must curtail the sale of liquor by the bottle if it wants to bring about moderation.

"Never make it so you have to buy a 26-ounce bottle in order to get a drink," he stated.

J. A. Reid (SC, Salmon Arm), who said he isn't a drinking man, said he wouldn't mind if B.C. went all dry.

If the majority want liquor, though, Mr. Reid said the government must legislate for that majority.

He said drinks by the glass will mean less consumption.

Rev. C. W. Parker (SC, Peace River) said he was "an extreme dry."

"The member for Cranbrook said he is more interested in what is left in the bottle after the water is taken out, but I'm more interested in the water."

William Moore (CCF, Comox) said the liquor industry should be socialized.

"The only way to control the liquor problem is to control the source," he said. "Take the profit motive out of it."

He said such areas won't be able to afford swanky establishments. He regretted there's no provision for the working man who wants to have a drink after work in his work clothes.

Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi, still another dry, said there's no solution on God's earth to the drinking problem.

He felt, however, the government has made an honest attempt to bring in a good liquor law.

He hoped the government will place greater restriction on liquor advertising.

Randolph Harding (CCF, Slocan) criticized the government for failing to set money aside for the educational side of the question.

He noted the Stevens Commission recommended rehabilitation centres for alcoholics and establishment of an Alcoholic Research Foundation at UBC.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the government plans to contribute to the operation of the Vancouver Alcohol Research Council.

Frank Howard (CCF, Skeena) wanted to know if persons under 21 who are going to be eligible to vote in elections will be permitted to sign petitions against liquor outlets and vote on local option plebiscites.

Only persons eligible to enter licensed premises should be allowed to vote on liquor outlets, he said.

'Honest Effort' Says Winch

E. E. Winch (CCF, Burnaby), a total abstainer, said the government had made an honest attempt to achieve the impossible.

Leo Nimsick (CCF, Cranbrook) said the bootleggers will fight more outlets along with the dries.

"Dry areas are breeding grounds for bootleggers," he said.

IN THE HOUSE

By GORDON FORBES

The House sat until nearly 1 a.m. today as Premier Bennett rammed through legislation in an attempt to prorogue this week.

Leo Nimsick (CCF, Cranbrook) said the speed-up was because the premier wanted the session over in time for the Socred convention in Vancouver next week.

The premier replied the House may sit until 2 a.m.

"Well, you're not scaring me. I'll probably be on my feet at 2 a.m." the member came back.

He didn't think the lawmakers could give proper attention to legislation when everyone was tired.

The liquor debate provided all the members with a chance to tell the public whether they were drinkers or not—and most of them took the opportunity, especially the "dries."

Most were on the government side.

E. E. Winch (CCF, Burnaby) said he is a total abstainer, "but I don't claim it as a virtue. I'm just not interested in it."

"I was even a total abstainer when I worked in a bar years ago," he said.

★ ★ ★

"I'm glad to hear the opposition leader is finally opposing the government," he said when Mr. Webster criticized toll bridges.

★ ★ ★

How they started:

Robert Strachan (CCF, Cowichan-Newcastle), had his first job delivering milk in Glasgow. He's now a carpenter and provincial president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America.

Rev. C. W. Parker (SC, Peace River), was a tap dancer in a show in his teens, and later was manager of a Vancouver grocery store. He's now a minister of the Nazarine Church.

ROKs Promise to Let 'Explainers' Do Work

PANMUNJOM, Korea (UP)—South Korea promised today to behave when Red persuaders begin attempting tonight to lure some 22,500 balky prisoners back to Communism.

Dr. H. K. Karl, official government spokesman, said no attempts would be made to prevent Indian guards from escorting the anti-Communist North Koreans and Chinese to lecture booths built by American engineers.

The Communists notified the neutral nations repatriation commission they wanted to interview 1,000 men Thursday night.

At the same time, the Communists reserved the right to have private "explanation" talks later.

The sessions are expected to last up to eight hours daily and will continue until Dec. 24, deadline set in the Korean armistice agreement.

Although South Korea promised not to interfere, Allied observers expected trouble. The captives have been told they are required to appear either singly or in groups before the Communist "explainers" and hundreds have vowed to kill the persuaders.

Numerous threats against the Indians, whom the South Koreans consider pro-Communists, have been made by South Koreans in responsible positions.

Refugees Offered Homes in Britain

BONN (AP)—The United Nations refugee commission announced Monday night that 700 refugees from Germany, Austria and Trieste will be admitted to the United Kingdom. The refugees will, by an agreement with the British government, be admitted under the sponsorship of private persons or voluntary agencies. They will guarantee accommodation and maintenance.

Beria Now Reported To Be on Yugoslav Isle

GERMANY (UP) — Skeptical Allied officials investigated today a refugee Yugoslav's report that purged Soviet secret police chief Lavrenti P. Beria is vacationing on a Yugoslav isle.

The officials said Peter Bogotaj, a locomtive engineer, said Beria was aboard his sleek "Orient Express" train last September 27 accompanied by men in Yugoslav uniforms.

"I overheard them saying they were accompanying Beria," Bogotaj asserted. "They got off at Kranj. Railway workers there told me later that Beria and the men proceeded by train to Brioni."

No Surrender

TAKEN TOGETHER, THE RECENT speeches of Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Abbott indicate that the Canadian Government, after the usual debates of the cabinet chamber, has decided not to raise the tariff. The Canadian industries demanding more protection at the consumer's expense, and the cabinet ministers who supported them, have evidently been defeated. The remarkably candid attack on high tariffs by the Prime Minister and his treasurer can hardly mean anything else.

It is not fashionable in Canadian politics nowadays to advocate the honest theory of protectionism. The Conservative Party, for example, talks only of manufacturing Canadian materials within Canada instead of exporting them. It does not mention the obvious fact that to accomplish this result, not by the competitive process but by governmental intervention, it will be necessary to restrict imports as well as exports.

Again, the textile industry of central Canada has not been demanding outright protection or any increase, in the normal tariff, but only some kind of special "anti-dumping" device, a polite name for the old remedy.

The Government, judging by its responsible spokesmen, has no difficulty in seeing through these sophistries. It adheres to the tariff policy which has brought this nation a record volume of trade and hence an unprecedented prosperity. And it hopes that other great trading nations, especially the United States, will increasingly follow the same sort of policy, the only sure safeguard, as Mr. St. Laurent says, against world-wide poverty.

Mr. Abbott's vigorous attack on tariffs before on American audience is particularly significant. After long and intimate experience, he holds that tariffs for the most part are designed to shelter inefficient industries that could become efficient if they had to, or non-economic industries that are employing materials and manpower better employed in other ways.

There can be no doubt that in the lush seller's market of the war and post-war years, when almost anything could be sold at almost any price, some doubtful industries were built in Canada and some sound industries were inclined to grow soft.

It may well be necessary, in the competitive buyer's market now developing, to alter the products of some industries that cannot meet such competition in anything like normal times. It certainly will be necessary for most of our exporting industries to hold down their increasing costs of production.

In any case, the businessmen and labor union leaders of the nation have been frankly warned by the Government that they need not look for an easy but unsound solution of these problems by a resort to the habit-forming drug of protectionism, however it is labeled.

Mrs. Tilly Jean Rolston

THE DEATH OF MRS. TILLY Jean Rolston has removed from British Columbia's political scene one of its colorful characters and has robbed Premier Bennett of a loyal lieutenant.

Elected in 1942 as a Progressive Conservative, she followed Mr. Bennett when, as a back-bencher, he crossed the floor from the Coalition Government, and joined him in the first successful campaign conducted by Social Credit in this province. As Minister of Education she lent her name to the controversial educational finance program on which the minority Government foundered, and retained her portfolio although unsuccessful in the elections last June.

While her position as the first woman holding a definite portfolio in a British Columbia cabinet gave her particular distinction, she will be remembered more warmly by thousands of citizens for her legislative championship of the housewife. She spoke feelingly and successfully for the woman in the home, fighting for colored margarine and placing the case of the family before the lawmakers.

Except for her efforts in that field, this newspaper has seldom agreed with the viewpoint of the late former member for Vancouver-Point Grey. It has, however, recognized in her a robust fighter, a cheerful personality and the type of vigorous opponent who, through outspoken comment, lends much to the conduct of public affairs.

In her recent fatal illness she had displayed high courage and a gallant spirit, appearing in public on occasions which must have caused her great suffering. To members of the family and to her immediate intimates, the Victoria Daily Times extends its deepest sympathy.

More and More Taxes

THE CONTROVERSIAL BILL 6 now before the Legislature contains two revolutionary features. Described as an act to equalize the assessed values of property for taxation purposes, it provides for an assessment commissioner, courts of revision and an appeal board with power to raise or lower the assessments in any municipality or rural area so as to make them uniform throughout the province.

In addition, the act will extend the "land and improvements" basis of taxation into municipalities and cities to include machinery and fixtures in commercial or industrial establishments.

The act refers only to assessment and taxation for school purposes, and levies will be based on a 100 per cent assessment of land and 75 per cent of machinery and fixtures. Assessments for purposes other than education are not affected, and may continue to vary as at present from one municipality or area to another.

The reassessment of property under the act is necessary, of course, if a uniform standard is to be set throughout the province. If a building is assessed at $10,000 in one locality, a similar building elsewhere must be assessed at the same value if the same rate of taxation is to be applied equitably as the legislation provides.

This is understandable. But it is obvious that considerable duplication will occur if different areas retain their old assessment rolls, since taxes will be levied on the new provincial assessment for school purposes and on the existing assessment for local expenses such as police and fire protection. Municipalities may demur, too, at paying the costs of the new government agencies to be set up under the act. There will be no appeal from the Assessment Appeal Board on questions of value, although points of law may be taken to the Supreme Court.

It is in regard to the second provision, however, that most criticism will occur. The government estimates that "in excess of $150 millions" in industrial and commercial machinery and fixtures will be added to assessed values for educational purposes through this measure. Apart from the general problems inherent in taxing property of this nature, a serious difficulty arises.

It is inevitable that a marked discrimination must occur as between businesses of various types. A sawmill, shipyard, machine shop or similar establishment will be liable for taxes on the equipment from which it derives its income. But other types of business—brokers, for instance, wholesale or retail establishments, or promotional enterprises—may do an equally large volume of business with only a tiny fraction of the taxable "industrial and commercial machinery and fixtures."

The government must realize that such an arrangement will lead to gross inequities.

It is curious that under the new administration, which assumed power on promises to reduce taxation and instill "economy with efficiency," the only reductions have been negligible items in regard to meals and automobile licenses. On the other side of the ledger we have the proposed new tax on lumber and mining production, and the extension of the machinery and equipment tax—both items of major importance to industry and producing a serious threat in many cases.

. . . Who Only Stand and Wait'

LESS THAN THREE YEARS ago, as the result of action started by Victoria, the Legislature approved the Union of B.C. Municipalities' recommendation to permit benches at bus stops.

Now Victoria's council is hemming and hawing over a commercial offer to supply benches, provided the commercial interests are allowed to use advertising on them. A legal technicality has been raised to delay or frustrate the plan, and the criticism has been advanced that advertising on benches would be undignified.

If the indignity is too great, let the city furnish the benches. If not, let the advertising people spend the money and save a little for Victoria which should, of course, demand reasonable standards in the advertising.

But above all, let the council members understand very clearly that by their present attitude they do not serve those who only stand and wait.

Which Will Fit?

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

SOME time ago I mentioned the Pilgrim Fathers (whom somebody had mentioned as spiritual brothers of the more fanatical Doukhobors while admiring both). This sent me back to my cousin's history of his 17th century New England ancestors (and mine). Among other facts he's dug up which were previously unknown to me is this: by 1640, at which time the Puritan migration stopped abruptly, there were about 65,000 Englishmen in North America and the West Indies, and of these the New England Puritan colonies accounted for less than 20,000, or less than one-third. History books, which are written mainly from and for the viewpoint of Whigs, dissenters, anti-royalists, etc., are careful to obscure this interesting fact. You'd imagine that in 1640 the whole of British North America was Boston and its suburbs and its dictatorship.

Brock

FURTHER, of these 20,000 in the Puritan colonies only about 4,000 were Puritans and had come there for religious reasons, or were the children of men who had so come. I base this rough guess on the undoubted fact that only one grown-up male in five was a church member. . . . I am presuming that the others had as many wives and children as the Puritans.

Still further, among the church-going Puritans were a good many who must have left England for economic rather than religious reasons. There was an extremely serious depression in England, and the areas hardest hit happened to be Puritan districts. So that a man could be emigrating for purely commercial reasons even though he happened to be a Puritan. Especially when he thought his new neighbors would be old friends and highly congenial . . . if one may be permitted to think of congeniality in connection with those whey-faced loons.

IT IS true that their church ran the Puritans' colonies as if by common consent and popular vote. It is merely untrue to assume that it had any such support in its tyranny. Until nearly the end of the 17th century, Massachusetts was run by a governor and a board of assistants, the latter being a self-perpetuating clot of clergy who were increasingly narrow and intolerant as their power grew. English common law was superseded by the Old Testament as interpreted by men who were neither scholars nor lawyers.

An end was put to this scandal by James II, who deserves a monument a hundred years more venerable than any to George Washington. No matter what James II did or failed to do in England . . . and he did assist Pepys energetically in creating the Royal Navy while he was Duke of York . . . no matter what he did at home, James II should be the first hero of New England. The first in time, and not very far from the first in importance. His religion could be kept a secret!

PUT ME IN MY PLACE

I THOUGHT, God pity me, that I would teach my little budgerigar Chips a cute saying. The best of us have our lapses. Over and over I said, "The birdie up a tree said chick-a-dee-dee-dee-dee." The bird Chips chewed this one over for some time and then delivered his opinion: "Sound like a crazy bird." And who can say he errs?

BEST SELLER

I GROW less fond of fiction as I mature. But what do you care about that? I'm as bad as any novelist myself, to inflict my private whims upon you. However, you'll be relieved to know that I still enjoy fiction as written by boys of 11. While tidying up a mess of papers under the desk of one of my sons, I found this:

"Vol. 1

The Outlaw

All was quite among the reeds beside the river if you looked up you might see a beam of light swinging about the reads looking for a man in a stipped suit. As you might amagin you were near the State Pen a place full of thugs with green eyes. This man had just escaped and he was near the reeds or up on the high walls. Then all of a sudden there was a splash a shatter of machine guns a sieren then silence. A light flashed atound and turned off. Then men with rifles were along the bank. But the outlaw was floating downstream on a log he was almost under water. He escaped safetly and lived in a shack for the rest of his life.

By J. B.

(Jokes Boaring)"

THE trouble with most short stories is that they are not short enough (except possibly in the New Yorker, where they are half-stories). Nobody can say that about this story. It is admirably short. It's like the snowflake on the river, one moment there and gone forever, or like the Borealis race that flits e'er you can point its place. Which, incidentally, is fine poetry, and written by Burns, not by John Brock.

ALTERNATIVE VOTE

When the bill to establish the alternative vote system was before the Legislature, Mr. H. Winch claimed that it gave to the supporters of minor candidates greater privileges than that allowed to the supporters of the contenders who reached the final count, and a local correspondent now claims that supporters of minor candidates really have additional votes over the others.

Actually, the system gives the same privileges to all. Each voter is told that if he will indicate on the ballot the order of his preferences his wishes will be complied with and that when the candidate with the least votes is retired after the first and further counts the next preferences will be used as to such ballots of a retired candidate.

Consequently at each count the votes of the voters supporting the leading candidates remain with such candidates and in like manner the votes of the retired candidates are given to those voters' nearest preferences that are still undefeated.

That is to say every vote at every count goes to the voters nearest choice that is surviving at that count. Thus every elector's ballot at every count is treated the same.

Although every voter may have many choices he has finally one vote only and the total number of votes at the latest count is never more than that at the first count.

In the final count every voter votes in what proves to be the main issue as represented by the candidates. Thus every voter is forced to exercise initiative by voting at the outset for his favorite cause knowing that by doing so he (or she) will not be shut out from participating in what proves to be the main issue.

As to the suggestion of another correspondent that the point system should be adopted, this idea never gets past an investigating committee because with actual trials it is found that the same ballots counted under the point system will not elect the same candidate that would be elected if the actual directions of the electors were followed as they have indicated them on their ballots.

Voters' wishes are not distinct elements than can be separated out under a gravity system. The voters are human beings wishing to participate intelligently in their own self-government in a co-operative way.

The alternative vote is the one system that allows them to do this.

WANTS FAVORITES

I am distressed, as I know many will be, to read that the Totem Theatre is threatened with closure. And it seems strange to me that the owners should say they can't understand why—that it never happened before. But if they had taken an entirely strange complement of Victoria players to Vancouver, and played at prices Vancouver could not afford, the same thing would probably have happened.

I live out of town, with friends. I used to go to the York every week, but I cannot afford that at Totem prices for seats where I can hear and see. And I look in vain for a number of Victoria players whom we all know and like to see often.

Has nobody told the Totem managers that their prices are too high, and that Victoria likes its own favorites once in a while?

(Mrs.) M. A. BARCLAY,
"The Maples," Brentwood Bay, V.I.

UP TO US

Victoria is indeed lucky that its newspapers and feature writers get behind someone like Totem Theatre who needs them. As a Vancouverite I can tell you that we miss Totem, and despite the help of the newspapers we let it slip through our fingers. Out of $155,000 needed to build a new home for Totem we could only raise $5,000; contrariwise last week in just a few hours of ticket sales Vancouver spent over $20,000 for the Sadlers Wells Ballet.

England, Sweden and even Russia, as well as many other countries, have a national theatre supported in part by the government. Canada has none and the excuse is that we are a young country. The responsibility though is upon us all as individuals to support theatre by going there if we appreciate it or just carrying on and showing our lack of culture if we don't!

Show business is one of the most risky. As a matter of record, out of 50 odd new shows opening last season on Broadway only three did not lose money and only one made a profit. However, the N.Y. producers have money troubles (caused by the giant city's high cost of living) that don't apply here.

Totem came to Victoria with a good production record (over two years in Vancouver). Arngrim and Baker are two young men with vision who don't know the meaning of fear and who "tread where angels fear to tread" because they believe in theatre. Whilst they may not have made a fortune before they came here because of the expense of starting a new business, nevertheless they gave the B.C. government $25,000 in ticket sales taxes. I hope Mr. Gunderson will notice.

Victoria, the chips are down so far as Totem's financies are concerned. If they don't get support this week you won't have a theatre next week. Their creditors can hardly be blamed for foreclosing on something that public apathy doesn't care about.

Totem represents culture. Visitors to Canada ask, "Where is your theatre?" and gasp at the answer. I can tell you that if they should go down fighting (the actors and management are no longer on salaries) it will be your loss, Victoria.

Furthermore, if they leave here these Totem people will succeed—somewhere, in spite of Victoria—and Vancouver! They will go to other fields and succeed because they have a fire within them—the spark of theatre! They will go away and succeed and join the ranks of others like Joan Miller, Bernie Braden, Barbara Kelly, Yvonne de Carlo, Alan Young, Basil Langton, Art Hill, Peggy Hazsard, John Drainie, and many others, and then the Cassandras' will wail and complain about all the talented young people going away in search of the root of all evil—money.

There is nothing wrong with Totem that a little root won't help. Vancouver was downright stupid about theatre and is sorry now. Don't be stupid, Victoria. Pack the theatre and keep them going. It's up to you.

Young England Comes West

BY DAVID DONNISON, in The Manchester Guardian

A HUNDRED years ago Irishmen used to come over to pick potatoes, and then at the end of the season, with a few pounds in their pockets, they tramped to Liverpool to find ships sailing for Canada.

Today a man emigrating to Canada needs less brawn, but no less perseverance. He must shepherd his family through endless queues, and at the head of each he must learn to produce, like a conjurer, passports, medical cards, visas (for those intending to enter the United States), insurance policies, ration-books, vaccination and X-ray certificates, authorization, permits, testimonials—any of the documents that the man behind the desk may ask for.

He must have a good pen and answers ready for every kind of immigration form: he must remember the names and addresses of his sponsors, employers, and next of kin; he must know (and know the difference between) his nationality, race, and ethnic origin.

He learns to size up his interviewers and give them appropriate replies: terse and precise for the competent, amiable and chatty for the inexperienced who need to be put at their ease and reminded of questions they may forget to ask.

NO EASY THING

Once accepted by the Canadian immigration authorities he may book his passage—no easy thing in this Coronation year. Canadian shipping companies are breezy, English companies are suave, and both are discouraging.

Eventually an agent may find him berths aboard an Italian ship, remarking that he would never recommend such a course if any other were available.

The emigrant searching for his luggage in the holds finds an interesting assortment of names on the labels around him: Sweeny, Davies, Mertz, Jones, Hobbs, Arczynski, Turner, MacDonald, Mein, Cassidy—half the western world is represented.

Waiting on the dock at Quebec are missionary and social workers, ready with cups of coffee, toys for the children, and much kindly help and advice. Officials of the Customs, railways, and immigration department are brisk and friendly; the man at the bureau de change says "Welcome to Canada" to each of his customers.

Immigrants crowd into west-bound trains drawn out by enormous locomotives with cow-atchers and clanging bells. Once clear of the docks, they settle down to gaze at the new world outside—a Hollywood film acted against a French back-cloth.

The narrow fields of maize and tobacco are French, but the tiny farmhouses are built entirely of brightly painted wood, and the cars are all large and shiny. (What do they do with their old cars here?) The shop signs are French too — nearly. "Tabacs," "Meubles" "Cafe de la Liberte," "Buvez Coke."

"First call for dinner!" shouts the car attendant, and people hurry off, carrying babies and shepherding children along with them. Many have been on their feet all day with nothing but a cup of coffee since breakfast.

PLUS TAX

Then for nearly two hours they stand wedged in the corridor before they can get into the dining car. The food is magnificent when it comes—two courses that cost $3.00, plus 15 cents due to the Quebec provincial government.

But even this does not shake the immigrants' determination to adopt everything Canadian. "Sure it costs a lot, but your wages will probably be three times what you got back home."

Later that night at a station somebody finds a newspaper with the headline "Mythical Ashes Back in England." The word is passed round—"We won the Test!"

"We won the test?" says a young man. "You mean they won the Test. You're a Canadian now."

PRICE CONTROL

I remember a well-known manufacturer telling me that she had launched a new face cream at a low price. It just didn't sell until she increased the price from somewhere round five shillings a jar to nearer twelve and sixpence. Then it sold like anything.

—Mary Embrey.

TOO SHINY

It is no easy thing to tell a story plainly and distinctly by mouth; but to tell one on paper in difficult indeed, so many snares lie in the way. People are afraid to put down what is common on paper, they seek to embellish their narratives, as they think, by philosophic speculations and reflections; they are anxious to shine, and people who are anxious to shine can never tell a plain story.

—George Borrow, in "Lavengro."

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Back to the Primitive

THE GREEN-GREY HILLS above Shawnigan are splashed with color where October has given gold to the scattered maples. Mist rises from the lake in early evening, and in the dusk bonfires wink red around the shore.

Stott

This is a season dear to the week-end countryman, cherished because the days grow more uncertain. Soon persistent rains will come. Soon the evergreens will make their dripping pall over a land that is wet and cold, where leaves so recently bright turn brown and form a soggy rag carpet underfoot.

But in the meantime there is a sweetness in the air, sharp and invigorating. The tang of wood smoke adds its flavor and in the quick-falling dark an age-old mystery draws young and old to the outdoor fire.

There is a ritual to these early autumn evenings around the dancing flames. Custom has made of them a minor harvest festival, with youngsters munching apples new picked in the orchard, toasting their marshmellows on long sticks.

BACK BEYOND HISTORY

They pause in strident play to gaze into the glowing coals, seeing there, perhaps, the images made by man of a forgotten age. The child steps far back beyond history at such times, mulling over half-formed impressions, warm and comforted by the fire, scarce thinking in a drowsy contentment.

There is no reasoned worship of fire in him, no priesthood to create for him a god of flame. There are no philosophical undertones to his speculation on the use of fire in man's development. No idea stirs in his mind that those who first controlled fire set up for themselves a special defence against wild creatures nor that they rose to a higher standard of living. He has never heard the theory that fire-users, spreading to colder climates, established themselves as more intelligent than their fellows closer to the equator and bred a superior race.

The child, gazing into the embers, is satisfied with the beauty of the shades and the play of flames, the sense of warmth and the quick spectacle of rising fireworks as he stirs his stick among the coals. His is a primitive pleasure, tinged with the small fear of getting burned. Yet he is one, briefly, with his ancestors of an unknown past.

These things the week-end countryman may note as he stands, just in the range of fire-light, watching the youngsters in that silence that falls on them in the drowsiness of warmth.

UNCOMPLICATED

Yet more likely his thoughts are turning in satisfaction to a job well done, a litter cleaned up in this grand burning of rubbish a camp collects in summer. And for him, too, there is a simple, sensual pleasure in the bonfire, the erratic rhythm of its leaping flames, the sparks fountaining up into the darkness, the molten hues of its heart and the pearl grey softness of the dead ash.

Like the children about him, he is caught in the magic of a paganism he does not even try to explain.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Don't Force Right-Handedness

DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Many mothers with a left-handed child wonder what they should do about it; should they make very strenuous efforts to compel the child to use his right hand, or should they leave him alone? Will efforts to correct left-handedness produce stuttering or some other neurosis? Experts say that usually it seems best to let the child use his left hand for writing and ball-throwing and other activities which need the best possible control.

Dr. Alvarez

It is a good thing if the child can learn to use both hands well, and especially if he can learn to use his right hand at the dining table. I remember my revered professor of surgery, Dr. Emmet Rixford, was so ambidextrous that he would go to the blackboard with two pieces of chalk and rapidly draw beautiful pictures and diagrams, using both his hands at the same time.

According to Prof. Wendell Johnson of the State University of Iowa, a world authority on stuttering, there is no scientific justification for forcing a child to become right-handed. He thinks it wiser to let the child use the hand which he finds most convenient. He knows of no conclusive evidence to show that forcing a left-handed child to be right-handed will cause him to stutter.

Obviously, a sensible parent will not fuss at a left-handed child or punish him or make him feel conspicuous. Affectionately and calmly the mother may occasionally point out to the boy that if he can learn to use his right hand almost as well as his left hand, he will find it far easier to go through life.

MEDICINE IN RUSSIA

Some time ago (New England Journal of Medicine), Dr. Mark G. Field, working in the Russian Research Centre of Harvard University, wrote a remarkable description of medicine as it is practiced in Russia today.

As I said some time ago in a column, one of the greatest problems of a physician who works for a despotic government is that of giving or not giving certificates of illness for people who want to get out of working. If the doctor gives too many of these certificates he is likely to be thrown into jail, and if he refuses to give them to persons who have some political power, he also will find himself in jail.

As one Russian woman physician wrote, because of this daily dilemma, her life was a hell. In the clinic in which she worked she figured that about 50 per cent of the patients were faking illness as the only way of getting a bit of rest from their terrible forced labor. One sympathizes with the malingerers, but one sympathizes, also, with the poor doctors whose liberty depends on their skill in walking the tightrope between giving out too many certificates and giving out too few. Unfortunately, in Russia the doctors cannot combine in any way so as to present a united front to the government.

It is worth noting that, according to Dr. Field, the standard of living of a Russian physician does not differ significantly from that of a Russian worker. Hence it is that a young man has no incentive to study medicine, unless he is an idealist.

The poor doctor is plagued, also, with shortages of medical equipment and drugs and everything else that he needs. His instruments are of poor quality, and commonly he cannot get the things he orders from a central bureau. And if he cannot give patients what they demand, they can report him and get him into serious trouble. Let us say that a lazy bureaucrat fails to supply the doctor in a district with needed medicines and supplies, and hundreds of patients complain. The simplest way out for the bureaucrat is to arrest the doctor and, after a mock trial, make an example of him; this then satisfies everyone.

As the world knows, just before Stalin died, nine of the leading physicians in Russia were thrown into jail on trumped-up charges. If Stalin had lived they probably would have been tried and executed. The charges were brought against them by a woman physician named Dr. Timachuk, and for her "great service to the state" in this matter she was awarded the Order of Lenin. Later it was taken away from her.

Dr. Field concludes his article with the statement that, in spite of everything, in many cases kindly physicians in Russia are able to loosen somewhat the pressure of the screws which the officials are clamping down on people in order to make them work.

Tax on Timber Leases Held Confiscation by Liberal MLA

The government's proposed 1 per cent tax on the value of timber leases and licenses is "confiscation by taxation," Gordon Gibson (Lib., Lillooet), said in the Legislature Tuesday night.

"It's not a tax to increase revenue," he stated. "It's a tax to force the loggers to do what the government wants."

He said nobody in the government has the experience to know the serious effect of the tax.

"It's only brought about by somebody sniffing power for the the first time," he charged.

Mr. Gibson, a retired logging operator, said there has been lots of quiet lobbying against the bill, "but the threat of pressure" has stopped the lobbyists from coming out in the open.

He said the tax will increase present imposts from $140 per timber limit to $2,000.

"The government has gone crazy. It's like having a $600 tax on a $300 car," Mr. Gibson stated.

He interpreted the tax as a government move to force loggers into forest management licenses which are unaffected by the new tax.

"The CCF would pay for what they took over, but this government confiscates by taxation."

He said the tax plan was fostered a long time ago in the provincial forestry department which wants "complete control."

Leo Baker Heads League of Roses

Leo Baker was installed as president at the annual banquet of the League of Roses (Lancs and Yorks) in Terry's Rose Room last week.

Other officers installed were Mrs. A. Jones, first vice-president; M. Hawkins, second vice-president; J. Leonard, secretary, and Mrs. E. Leonard, treasurer. W. Dawson, J. Brew, W. Booth, Mrs. F. Purcell and Mrs. S. MacAllister were named to the exeecutive committee.

Presentations were made to retiring officers.

HINT FOR CAR-MAKERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Suggestion that automobile manufacturers agree to place all car bumpers at a uniform height from the pavement was made by Mr. Justice Andre Demers in Superior Court here. Hearing an accident case, his lordship said damage would have been less if the two bumpers had met squarely.

PRAIRIE ROUND-UP

Man Who 'Borrowed' Child Faces Trial

WINNIPEG (BUP) — A lonely laborer who "borrowed" a five-year-old girl for a month and took her halfway across Canada because he wanted a child of his own was scheduled to appear at the Fall Assizes today charged with kidnapping her.

George Provost, 51, was arrested in June in a Vancouver hotel where he had taken little Linda Verfaille on a 1,600-mile trip from Winnipeg.

Police said the child had not been molested.

Linda's parents called in police after Provost, described as a friend of the family, took her on what was supposed to be a one-week visit to his farm home near here and failed to return. They said he told them he wanted a child of his own.

Police said Linda called Provost "daddy" and that Provost, a laborer who came here from Port Churchill, Man., apparently took "excellent" care of her.

Polio Emphasizes Shortage of Nurses

WINNIPEG (BUP) — Manitoba's polio epidemic was cited here as an indication of the "pressing need" for more nurses.

Miss Gladys Sharpe, nursing director of the Atkinson School of Nursing in Toronto, told nurses attending the annual Manitoba Hospital and Nursing Conference Tuesday that Canadian methods of teaching nurses need "drastic revision."

"In this province alone, the polio situation has shown up the pressing need for nurses," she said. "But across Canada there is a shortage of 8,200 nurses."

Miss Sharpe said control of nurses' education should not stay in the hands of hospitals.

Winnipeg Steelmen's Strike in 3rd Week

WINNIPEG (CP) — Deputy Labor Minister W. Elliott Wilson said Tuesday his department must have a "straightforward request signed by both parties" before it will preside over any future negotiations between striking Winnipeg steelworkers and their employers.

Spokesmen for the two striking locals of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) said they have agreed to a company proposal that any further negotiations be conducted under labor department auspices.

Approximately 720 employees of Dominion Bridge Co., Ltd. and its subsidiary, Manitoba Bridge and Engineering Works Ltd., have been out on strike for two weeks. There have been no negotiations since the strike started.

The company in negotiations before the strike supported a conciliation board majority report recommending an increase of four, five and six cents an hour to various classifications. The present basic wage is $1.22.

The union's last proposal was an offer to accept a three-step increase of 16 to 18 cents during the contract year.

Two-Way Fights in Saskatchewan Votes

REGINA (BUP) — Nominations closed today for two provincial Legislature seats.

CCF candidates were named in Rosthern and Souris-Estevan ridings. The Liberals sponsored one candidate in Rosthern and joined forces with the Progressive Conservatives in Souris-Estevan.

Both by-elections will be held October 28.

The present 53-seat legislative assembly is made up of 42 CCF members and nine Liberals. There are two vacancies.

Fall Kills Girl

KENORA, Ont. (CP)—Dorothy Johnson, 22, of Winnipeg, was fatally injured here during the Thanksgiving week-end when the horse she was riding bolted and threw her to the ground.

Regional Libraries Needed on Prairies

SASKATOON (CP) — More and better reading for the people of rural Saskatchewan through the setting up of regional library services was urged Tuesday in a brief presented to Saskatchewan's royal commission on agriculture and rural life by the north-central Saskatchewan regional library.

The brief was presented by Ald. Marion Sherman of Prince Albert and Marion Gilroy and Grace Crookes, Prince Albert librarians.

Cattle Floor Prices, Marketing Boards Farmers' Objectives

WINNIPEG (BUP) — Delegates from farmers' unions in Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta met today to draw up plans for government and private livestock marketing boards.

The conference was sponsored by J. Shultz, president of the Manitoba Farmers' Union, who said that livestock producers in this country "are still living in the Dark Ages."

The farmers' representatives will draft a general plan of attack on the federal government in order to obtain livestock floor prices, a producers' marketing board for livestock products, and a government marketing board.

Saskatchewan Wheat Quality Good, Yield Is Above Forecasts

REGINA (BUP) — The Saskatchewan department of agriculture today took an optimistic look at the crop situation in the province in its final crop survey of the 1953 season.

The department said harvesting of the bumper crop was nearing completion with wheat threshing about 97 per cent complete and only 5 per cent of the oats and barley crop still on the field.

Expected yield returns were achieved and in some areas were even better than forecast throughout the season. The quality of the wheat crop was described as "very good" with 87 per cent expected to Grade No. 3 Northern or better.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

PICKIN' UP THE PIECES—First the Kins are out and then they're in—but not in the Victoria and District Basketball Association.

Victoria's senior A men's basketball entry is actually no longer Victoria's, but now belongs to Saanich.

The Saanich and Suburban League has accepted the Kins' application. And the reason for this turns of events is that no formal application was made to the city league prior to the closing date for entries. And the Kins, though since having made a tentative request for entry, would have been turned down at any rate, even prior to the announcement that their Saanich entry had been accepted.

Walker

Russ Atkinson of the city basketball commission, in explaining the city league's stand, stated simply that rules are made to be observed and Kins are required to obey them along with other clubs. Atkinson also pointed out that city officials have no axe to grind with the Kins and also that it is possible (likely as a matter of fact) that Victoria won't go without its senior A basketball as long as Kins can make suitable arrangements with the various city leagues for use of city gyms.

* * *

Whitey Turner is proving to be a healthy addition to Victoria United of the Coast Soccer League who appear to have a good chance of capturing first-half honors. Improving with every out, United will be that much stronger when Tommy Druce returns to regular action. . . . Another soccer luminary of recent vintage is Alan "Rookie" Wright, the nickname being a misnomer as Alan is, in reality, a veteran.

Hoop fans will readily recall Wright's original rise to glory when, as a spare to the redoutable Chuck Chapman of Domino fame, he stepped into the breech, caused by Chapman's loss on fouls, in a playoff game in Montreal and made headlines across the country. He is a good reason why Canadian Scottish are leading the city soccer league at present.

* * *

Everyone will no doubt agree that the Cougars are away to a shaky start in the Western Hockey League, but little fault can be found with the play of Andy Hebenton, Eddie Dorohoy and Colin Kilburn. . . . Until Bob Manson's acquisition from Seattle, the Cougars did not have one right-hand shot on the team.

* * *

Think the four-minute mile is only a dream? The latest Canadian Olympic bulletin lists several outstanding milers who yet could reach the coveted mark.

John Landy of Australia has recorded times of 4.2.8, 4.4.2. Reiff of Belgium has hit 4.2.8 and 4.3.4, Erickson and Aberg of Sweden has turned in times of 4.3.6 and 4.4.2, respectively. Roger Bannister of England 4.2 and 4.3.6. . . . Bannister and Landy, the latter never having been extended at home, are expected to compete in the British Empire Games at Vancouver next summer.

* * *

Things may have changed in the meantime, but at last report Rudy Filion and Doug Adam of Seattle Bombers had not agreed to terms and the rumor was that they may be traded. . . . Ollie Dorohoy, incidentally once rumored as a Cougar, has signed with New Westminster and is with the Royals on their prairie junket. . . . In answer to a query, the British Empire Games stadium in Vancouver will seat 25,286 with room for 10,000 standees. . . . Total cost (again) will be $1,586,000.

On the baseball front, rumor is that the Tyees are interested in Yakima's slugging negro outfielder Herman Lewis and shortstop Bill McNamara. . . . Both are up for sale, as is the entire Yakima ball club, owner Fred Mercy Jr. apparently making good his threat: "I've had enough." . . .

* * *

Jim Lackie of the Merchants hockey club pooh-poohs the idea that his club is a shoo-in for the city league crown. . . . "Why," says Jim, "I've lost six players—Ab Ellis, Ken Gunter, Ivan Wood, Red Smith, Connie McBeth and Norm LaCree—and have only two replacements in return—Bernie Strongman (formerly of the Cougars) and Bill Helgerson of Vancouver."

Clippers-Merchants Meet in Feature

A new team, a new referee and a flock of new players will be the bumper offerings of the Victoria Commercial Hockey League tonight as it takes the strings and tinsel off a spanking new season.

Centre of attraction tonight will be the Nanaimo Clippers, the only outside club ever to be admitted to the local league. Coached by colorful Eddie Shamlock, Clippers have a powerful line-up on paper and should add spice to a league that is always noted for its ginger.

Another newcomer who will no doubt be watched with a scrutinizing eye by fans will be Ross Valliere, former Western Hockey League official who has been secured as referee-in-chief for the Commercial League. Valliere's professional experience should add speed and efficiency to the game. Tonight he will have Bert Nelson and Bill Hatcher working on the lines.

First game of the night matches Navy with Dick Irving's Victoria V's while the feature game has Clippers meeting Jim Lackie's powerful defending champion Victoria Merchants.

STRONG ENTRY

Lackie's club appears to be even stronger than the powerful aggregation that swept through all local competition last season.

Merchant coach Bill Jensen is hip-deep in talent, particularly on defense, and is assured of having three top-notch forward lines. Bernie Strongman and Joe Evans, both former Victoria Cougars, are expected to be in uniform tonight.

Irving is expected to have a young Victoria V's Club and has secured several scoring stars from last year's Army squad. In addition, Irving may have one of last year's Navy forwards playing tonight.

Navy may be the dark horse entry but can be counted on to be tough defensively, if for no other reason than playing coach Norm Jones who will start in goal.

Four door prizes will also be awarded during the second game, a TV set, a suit of clothes valued at $100, mantel radio and pop-up toaster.

First game starts at 7.30, second at 9.

Two Negroes Called Up By Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — The world champion New York Yankees Tuesday brought up Vic Power and Elston Howard, Negro stars, from their Kansas City farm team in the American Association.

Power and Howard, two of eight players promoted by the Yankees from their vast minor league organization, will be the first Negroes ever to wear a Yankee uniform.

Power, a strong righthand hitter who plays infield as well as outfield, captured the American Association batting title this season with a .349 average. The 23-year-old, who played mostly in left field this season, also paced the circuit with 217 hits and .324 total bases.

Banff Bids for Winter Olympics

EDMONTON, Alta. (BUP)—The Alberta Amateur Skiing Association made a bid today for the 1958 Winter Olympics to be held at Banff, high in the Canadian Rockies.

Formal application was made to the International Ski Federation and the decision will be made at its March meeting in Sweden.

Association officials were confident the application would be accepted. They said preparations were under way for the biggest venture the club has undertaken.

Dressen Handed Release As Brooklyn Manager

Sports

8 Victoria Daily Times WEDNESDAY, OCT. 14, 1953

Failure to Come to Terms Reason Given by Dodgers

MONTREAL (AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers today dropped Charlie Dressen as manager. Dressen led the Dodgers to National League championships in 1952 and 1953, but lost to New York Yankees in the World Series both years.

The failure of Dressen and the Dodgers to come to terms for 1954 was a complete surprise to baseball observers, who expected Dressen to return at an increase in pay.

President Walter O'Malley in making the announcement said that he and Dressen had been unable to come to terms after a lengthy conference Tuesday.

He said that Dressen demanded a three-year contract and that it was not the policy of the Brooklyn club to sign a manager for more than one season. He said that was the only factor in Dressen's resignation.

Dressen said he had no immediate plans. Mrs. Dressen is in a Long Island hospital for observation and treatment, and he said they would leave for their home on the west coast as soon as she is released.

Dressen, 55, took over the managerial reins at Brooklyn in 1951 after leading Oakland to a Pacific Coast League flag the previous season. Under his direction, the Dodgers built up a 13½-game lead in mid-August of '51 only to lose the pennant to New York Giants in a post-season playoff.

Dressen and the Dodgers atoned for this failure, however, the next two seasons.

RECORD-BREAKING YEAR

Dressen was the first National League manager to win two successive pennants since Billy Southworth accomplished the feat with the 1942-43-44 St. Louis Cardinals. He directed a power-packed Dodger team that established 35 records in racking up 105 victories the past season, the most ever won by a Brooklyn team. His team clinched the flag on September 12, missing the record for the earliest clinching by one day. The 1906 Chicago Cubs clinched the NL flag on September 11.

CONN, CLUNE COMING

Cougars Get Defense Aid

Victoria Cougars' early season flagging fortunes were bolstered today by the acquisition of two defensemen.

Cougar general manager Fred Hutchinson announced that Joe Conn and Walter Clune had been obtained from Montreal Canadiens.

The addition of the two players brings to three the number of recent acquisitions, Bob Manson being acquired from Seattle in a trade for Fiori Goegan Monday.

Conn is well known in the Western Hockey League, having played for Seattle Bombers the last two years.

He is in his seventh professional season, joining the moneyed ranks from Vancouver Canucks of the former Pacific Coast Amateur League in 1947.

He was with Kansas City in 1947-48, Springfield and Cleveland in the 1948-49 season and Kansas City on the USHL again the following year. He played for Portland in the 1950-51 season. He was purchased by the Canadiens from Cleveland this year.

Clune was a member of the Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior League last year. Previously he played for the Boston Olympics amateur club.

A rugged performer, Conn is expected to join the Cougars today. Clune, who is driving west, will likely arrive sometime this week-end.

Vessels Gains In WIFU Point Race

WINNIPEG (CP)—Despite a 15-point performance by Billy Vessels, Winnipeg's Bud Korchak maintained his lead in the individual scoring after 13 games in the 16-game schedule of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Vessels, Oklahoma's all-America halfback, picked up three touchdowns for Edmonton Eskimos Saturday as the league-leaders won 34-13 over Calgary Stampeders, but failed to score a point Monday when Esks again whipped the Stamps 22-6.

VESSELS GAINS

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press, however, show Vessels gained eight points on Korchak, who booted seven points in Winnipeg's double loss to Saskatchewan Roughriders during the week-end. Korchak now has 57 points on one touchdown, eight field goals, five singles and 23 converts.

Quakers Tied for WHL Lead

A three-team bottleneck for first place has developed in the Western Hockey League with the 1953-54 season just more than a week old.

Saskatoon Quakers, who topped the league standings last season, moved into the upper bracket with Calgary Stampeders and Vancouver Canucks Tuesday night by clipping New Westminster Royals 2-1 at Saskatoon.

The three teams each have seven points, but Saskatoon and Vancouver have two games in hand over Stampeders and are still to taste defeat.

It was the first match of a three-game swing through the prairie clubs for the Royals. They opened the scoring in the first period on a goal by Max McNab, but were stopped cold by Chuck Rayner in the Saskatoon net for the rest of the game.

KALETA GETS WINNER

Quakers were a man short when Bailey whipped a blistering shot past Royals goalie, Lucien Dechene, after breaking into the clear.

KIDS LIKE SOCCER

Bullfighting Ain't What It Once Was

MADRID (AP)—Bullfighting here is not what it used to be. Soccer outclasses it 4 to 1 in popularity. Even baseball and basketball are catching up fast.

The bullfight arena has a job filling its 25,000 seats each Sunday during the March-through-October season. But 60,000 to 80,000 cheering fans show up every Sunday the Royal Madrid soccer teams play.

International basketball matches like the one with Italy a few months ago drew nearly 20,000.

Baseball is not as far advanced. But as many as 5,000 have shown up for recent games.

Desertion of the bullring began during the republic. After the civil war there was a temporary revival caused by a magnificent matador, Manolete, killed in 1947. Then a revulsion for blood sports was felt along with lack of topflight bullfighters, high prices and poor bulls.

Most important, bullfighting is not a participator sport. Children get little kick any more out of passing an imaginary bull with a flannel rag the way their fathers and grandfathers did. They're out now with a ball, any size, kicking it around at every opportunity.

Court Asks More Proof Of Baseball Monopoly

WASHINGTON (UP) — The supreme court called for more testimony today in cases that describe organized baseball as a profitable "monopoly" that should be regulated by the federal anti-trust laws.

Attorneys for a minor league player and a minor league club owner were scheduled to resume arguments before the high court at noon (EST). The cases involve damage claims totalling $450,000 against various officials in organized baseball.

The court heard testimony in a third $375,000 case Tuesday. The "monopoly" charge was aired at the outset.

All three cases ask the supreme court to rule that baseball is interstate commerce and subject to the anti-trust laws. All have been dismissed by lower courts under a 1922 ruling—written by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes—that baseball is a game, not a business.

Frederic A. Johnson, arguing when the court recessed yesterday, was first to be heard today. Johnson represents Walter J. Kowalski, a Brooklyn Dodger farm hand. He claims Kowalski was the victim of a "cover up" in the Brooklyn farm system which prevented Kowalski's attaining his proper potential—and income.

Attorneys for the El Paso Baseball Club were to present their case after baseball attorneys replied to Johnson and faced questioning from the members of the high court. The El Paso Club contends that a 1949 agreement between U.S. and Mexican baseball leagues deprived the club of the services of four Mexican players and cost the club a "considerable profit" on their sale.

Opening his argument, Johnson said baseball's regulations—including the controversial "reserve" clause which binds a player for life to the club with which he signs a contract—reduce the players to a mere "property."

WHAT'S GOING ON?

Turpin Has British Brass Worried

LONDON (AP) — The top man in British boxing headed for New York by air today determined to "find out what's going on at Randy Turpin's training camp."

Teddy Waltham, secretary of the British Boxing Board of Control, was plainly worried over conflicting press reports on the mental attitude of the British middleweight, who fights Bobo Olson for the world title next Wednesday.

"I'm going straight up to Grossinger's to have a talk with him," Waltham told reporters before boarding a plane at London airport.

"I hope if there's something troubling him, it will come out."

Tuesday the London press carried headlines over a statement by Turpin that he'd pull out of the fight "if anyone bothers me."

Today, headlines changed to "Turpin turnabout—now I couldn't be happier," in the Daily Mirror, and "Turpin decides to feel happy" in the Daily Express.

Esquimalt Boxing Club Opens Tonight

The Esquimalt Boxing Club plans to start operations tonight and has extended the welcome mat to any youngsters who wish to learn how to box.

First workout of the season will be held at the Esquimalt Community Hall, Sturdee St., under coaches Nick Lystar, Tommy Burgess and Eddy Robertson, at 7.30.

Esks May Lose Star; Vessels Gets Army Call

EDMONTON (CP)—Ordered by his Oklahoma draft board to report for an American army medical, halfback Billy Vessels of Edmonton Eskimos left Tuesday for the United States to clarify his military status.

Accompanied by Eskimos' coach Darrell Royal, the 21-year-old Vessels went to Great Falls, Mont., to talk with draft board officials there. Special permission was given for the switch to the Montana centre.

Vessels, one of the sensations of the Western Interprovincial Football Union in his first season with Eskimos, is the second leading scorer with 50 points made up of 10 touchdowns. Last year with Oklahoma Sooners he won the Heisman trophy after being voted the No. 1 U.S. college football player and was the top draft choice of Baltimore Colts.

Commenting on the situation, Eskimo president Ken Montgomery said the order "was not unexpected." Vessels, he pointed out, is of military age and the fact that he might be called up had been well known to the club since he was signed last February.

"The trip to Great Falls will serve to clarify Billy's status," Montgomery said. Vessels is expected to return to Edmonton Wednesday night, and full details of his status are expected to be made known then.

Vessels, with his all-round running, passing, pass-catching and defensive ability, is one of the major reasons why Eskimos already have cinched first-place finish in the WIFU with three games remaining in the schedule. He has helped lead them to 11 victories in 13 league starts, best record of any major Canadian football team.

He tops the league in yards gained rushing. Official statistics for the first 11 games showed he carried the ball 98 times for a total net gain of 720 yards or an average of 7.3 a carry. That left him only 264 yards shy of the conference record established for 16 games in the 1951 season by teammate Normie Kwong.

With the Sooners last year Vessels carried the ball 1,080 yards and scored 18 touchdowns.

Griffin Benefit Match Raises Sum of $300

Officials of the Victoria and District Football Association were pleased to announce today that close to $300 has been raised for polio victim Ken Griffin.

The former Adanac player has been confined to an iron lung for two months and faces at least another month before he will be back on his feet.

Monday's intercity exhibition game between Canadian Scottish and Nanaimo was billed as a benefit for Griffin and while attendance was slight donations were generous.

Charlie Lewis and Don Gray of the association will be on hand at Saturday's match between Victoria West and Wood Motors to accept further donations to the worthy cause.

CASEY MAKES IT FIVE STRAIGHT

NEW YORK (UP) — Wily old Casey Stengel, the jovial genius who directed the Yankees to five straight world championships, won his "annual" award today as the United Press American League manager of the year.

It was the fifth year in a row for ol' Case, but despite his unprecedented feat of running up more world series triumphs in a row than any other manager in history, he had some competition for the award. In other campaigns he had won it almost unanimously.

This year in the balloting by the special committee of 24 baseball writers, three from each league city, Stengel received 18 votes while Lou Boudreau of Boston's Rover Boy Red Sox and Paul Richards of Chicago's Go-Go White Sox picked up three each.

9.35 a.m.—W. Cotton and W. C. Blackstock vs. L. Nelson and J. M. Brooks.
9.40 a.m.—G. Cartwright and A. W. Brownlie vs. D. Hogarth and E. Gaetz.
10.00 a.m.—P. V. Frith and W. C. Shade vs. L. E. McCooey and F. Hutchinson.

SAILORS ORDERED TO ANSWER 'INELIGIBLE PLAYER' CHARGE

City Grid Protest Tabled

Possibility looms that the Navy's one-sided 27-0 victory over Vampires last Saturday may be thrown out by the executive of the Victoria Junor Canadian Football League.

Vampires have filed an official protest on the grounds that Navy used three ineligible players in the game.

The protest contends that the three players have played in a higher class than junior ball and, therefore, are not eligible for the local league.

Written into the minutes of a league meeting this year was the motion that "no player shall be deemed eligible for this league if he has had experience superior to junior calibre."

Starry Navy quarterback Cam McIntyre, who pitched three touchdown tosses and scored one major Saturday, is one of the players referred to in the protest which alleges he played for Royal Military College in Kingston, RMC being classed as an intermediate team.

League officials met on the subject Monday night but tabled their decision until Thursday night, at which time Navy will be asked to reply to the protest.

Football is a rough, tough game at the best of times and injuries are to be expected. However, it was regrettable that Royal Roads ran into such a string of bad luck as befell them Monday when they defeated Oak Bay. The light cadets took a bruising from the heavier Oak Bay line and lost Fred Simpkin with a broken fibula. This was the first serious injury of the season.

* * *

Vampire sub quarterback Bob Copeman showed a lot of courage Saturday in the face of adversity. Forced into the pivot slot for the first time when regular signal-caller Pete Ash was injured, Copeman experienced a daylight nightmare.

Four of his passes were intercepted by Navy, three of them leading to touchdowns. However, although he was shaken up badly by the crashing Navy line, Copeman refused to leave the field and was brilliant in running back kicks.

* * *

Oak Bay Whitneys were slightly furious following their loss to Royal Roads on Monday and had intended to protest the refereeing. However, the expected postgame anger wore off and no action was taken.

* * *

As the league now stands (the protest may change the standings), this week-end will see two crucial games. On Saturday, the league-leading Royal Roads will be out to protect their lead when they meet Navy, while Vampires and Oak Bay tangle on Sunday. This latter game is a must for both teams, as they will be battling for the last playoff berth. The loser will face the task of beating Navy and/or the cadets to make the postseason series.

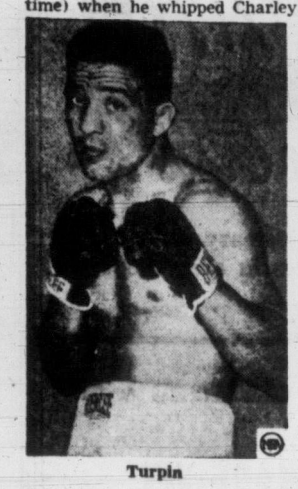
Red Smith

NEW YORK—The betting odds that favor Bobo Olson, the Portugese-American Swede from Hawaii, over Randolph Augustus Turpin, of Leamington, England, must perplex the British boxing writers who have come over to see them fight for the middleweight championship a week from Wednesday night. At least, the line of reasoning that has established the odds seems less than clear to this onlooker.

In the British view, Turpin is champion of the world, having succeeded to Ray Robinson's title (for the second time) when he whipped Charley Humez, of France. Authorities not resident on the tight little isle do not go along all the way with the English claims, conceding Turpin nothing more than the European championship at this time.



Turpin

There would, however, not be many dissenting voices raised in any land if it were declared that Turpin has been the best fist fighter developed in blighty in any weight division in a good many years. Pound for pound, he is certainly a better all-around workman than Bruce Woodcock or Freddie Mills, England's most noted bruisers since Tommy Farr.

This being so, it must go down a trifle hard with a Briton when the guy is put away as a mere "opponent" for a Honolulu street fighter who has never even claimed any title of note except a home-made, hand-built, commission-tooled designation as "champion of America. Upon what meat do these, our continental champions, feed that they are grown so great?

It is the notion here that any man of acceptable fighting age who could whip Ray Robinson once and frighten him to desperation in a second bout should be ranked as the best active middleweight in the world until proven unworthy. On the basis of their performances against Robinson, Turpin would seem to have at least a narrow edge.

Olson Tough to Hit, Hard to Hurt

According to the records, each is in his 26th year, Turpin being the older by about a month. They have been fighting approximately the same length of time. Olson began in 1945 against assorted obscurities on the west coast and in the Pacific island; Turpin started about 10 months later with nondescripts in London, Birmingham and Oxford. Both won by knockouts over most early adversaries.

Each met Robinson twice, although the first Robinson-Olson bout in 1950 involved nothing more than the Pennsylvania middleweight title, for Robinson had not then won the world championship from Jake Lamotta. On that occasion Robinson stopped Olson in 12 rounds; when they met again Ray won on points.

Olson is a pretty good fighter, rough, busy, experienced and able. He doesn't stiffen victims with one blow, but he can beat a man senseless by sheer volume of punches. He is hard to hurt and rather good at hiding his chin behind his filial adornments, the tattooed tributes to "mother" that festoon his biceps.

Both Robinson and Robinson's manager, George Gainford, testified that Olson was ahead on points after the 10th round of their second fight and was barely overtaken in the stretch. Although Robinson was then on the threshold of a career as a night club dancer, this is a reliable testimonial for Olson.

Turpin's Qualifications Better

In this book, though, Turpin's credentials are a trifle more impressive. He won a clear and undisputed decision over Robinson in their first meeting, in London in 1951, taking the world title. Two months later he gave Robinson a rough time in the Polo Grounds, seemed the stronger of the two when he cut Robinson's face open in the ninth round.

Hurrying lest he be stopped because of the bleeding, Robinson gambled all his resources on a 10th-round knockout and won. Even so, Turpin was up and riding with raised brows when the referee declared a truce. He insisted later that he could have continued but most witnesses disagreed.

Anyhow, Turpin impressed both this bystander, which isn't difficult, and Robinson, which isn't easy. Subsequently somebody asked Ray about the possibility of a third match with Turpin.

"If he walked up to me on the street and hit me in the mouth," Robinson said, "I'd have to defend myself. But I don't want no more guys like Turpin."

Robinson also said—and this is a factor to be considered now—that Turpin told him he had suffered making the weight for their second match and might not attempt it again. Later he campaigned briefly as a light-heavyweight in England but, according to a British reporter, he never got much beyond the 160-pound limit.

Perhaps he lost something on his elevator ride between divisions. Possibly damage suffered in an automobile accident during the summer will reveal itself in the ring. If, however, he is the same fighter who split a pair with Robinson, then he'll be a large order for Olson.

That's the way it figures now. Visits to the training camps may alter opinions.

May Reach New High

NEW YORK (UP)—A new record of world-wide ring fatalities probably will be set this year, editor Nat Fleischer of the Ring Magazine, said today.

"Thus far in 1953 there have been 17 deaths among amateurs and professionals due to boxing injuries," he explained. "That equals last year's total and is only two less than the record of 19, set in 1949."

As usual, the amateur toll exceeds the professional, he emphasized. World-wide, there have been 10 fatalities among the Simon-pures and seven among the pros. Five amateurs died in the United States and only two professionals.

NBA RATINGS RELEASED

Rock in Class By Himself

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Boxing Association made it official Monday: There isn't a heavyweight fighter in Rocky Marciano's class.

For the first time since Joe Louis was in his heydey, the NBA left a big blank in the "logical contender" slot among the heavyweights.

The NBA's fall ratings gave the same vote of confidence to Jimmy Carter, the world lightweight champion. No logical contender was reported in sight in that division.

Roland La Starza, who was right behind Marciano in the summer ratings, slumped to third place among the heavyweight division's outstanding boxers as a result of his technical knockout loss to the champion last month.

TWO ULTIMATUMS

The NBA issued ultimatums to two champions to defend their titles or risk losing their crowns. These warnings went to Archie Moore, the light-heavyweight champion, and Percy Bassett, who holds the interim featherweight title while titlist Sandy Saddler is in the army.

Most cluttered division was the middleweight, where the title has been vacant since the retirement of Sugar Ray Robinson. The 1-2 logical contenders, Randy Turpin and Carl Bobo Olson, fight for the championship October 21.

The ratings:

LIGHT-HEAVYWEIGHT — Champion, Archie Moore, Missouri; logical contender, Harold Johnson, Pennsylvania; outstanding boxers, Joey Maxim, Ohio; Yolande Pompey, British West Indies; Jim Slade, New York.

MIDDLEWEIGHT — Title vacant; logical contenders, Randy Turpin, England, and Carl Olson, Hawaii; outstanding boxers, Paddy Young, New York; Joe Giambra, New York; Charles Humez, France; Rocky Castellani, Pennsylvania; Holly Mims, Washington; Willie Troy, Washington.

WELTERWEIGHT — Champion, Kid Gavilan, Cuba; logical contenders, Johnny Bratton, Illinois; Carmen Basilio, New York; Gil Turner, Pennsylvania; Johnny Saxton, New York.

Willie Nears Record But Tony Unconcerned

By BUD WEEKS

SALEM, N.H. (AP) — Jockey Tony DeSpirito's national record of 390 winners may well be broken today but the 'teen-age riding sensation shows little concern. And you really can't blame him.

Many a sports champion sets a record which stands for decades only to be broken by some young upstart in the twilight of the veteran's career. It's an occasion for sentimental recollection.

But should Wee Willie Shoemaker run his season's winning total to 391 with two victories today at Golden Gate Fields in Albany, Calif., no such sentiment need be forthcoming. DeSpirito's doing mighty well for himself.

At an age when most youths are hitting the schoolbooks, this wiry, darkly-handsome 17-year-old is making more than $50,000 a year doing the job he likes best.

He startled the horse-racing world last year by breaking the record of 388 set back in 1906 by Walter Miller and tied in 1950 by Shoemaker and Joe Culmone.

DeSpirito grossed $86,000 in 1952 as a 16-year-old apprentice and booted home 390 winners in 1,482 mounts. It was a meteoric rise for a poor boy from Lawrence, Mass., who hung around the Rockingham Park stables here so long that someone finally gave him a job walking horses.

This year DeSpirito actually has surpassed his 1952 winning percentage even though he lags far behind Shoemaker's 389 victories. Tony missed more than 100 racing days through illness and suspensions. But he still has 266 winners.

At the moment DeSpirito has a hot streak going at Rockingham Park here with 14 winners in 25 mounts in the last three racing days. He has 37 winners in 106 tries in this autumn meeting.

He just won't let a horse quit on him and furious stretch drives are his trade mark. In Narragansett Park's closing program September 19 he accepted four mounts and won on all four.

Canadians moved into a first-place tie with Penticton V's by beating Kimberley Dynamiters of the Western International League 3-1 at Vernon. Canadians and V's have each won three straight games.

Ninth Ontario Strike Called in Gold Mines

TIMMINS, Ont. (BUP) — A new strike brought the number of men idled in the Northern Ontario and Quebec mining belt to 7,000 today, and mining companies started wondering which would be hit next.

Four hundred workers at Aunor Nine, a subsidiary of the rich Noranda Mine in northwestern Quebec, quit work Wednesday afternoon and were expected to be followed soon by miners at Waite Amulet and Normetal.

Eight other mines already were idled as a result of a wage-hour dispute that reached its climax 95 days ago when the CIO United Steelworkers of America and the operators failed to agree on new contracts. They included the gold and copper-producing McIntyre, Hollinger, Broulan Reef, Hallnor, Preston East Dome, Delnite, Quemont and Noranda.

The mushrooming strike so far has crippled and according to town officials could ruin the economy of the ore-rich north.

While the Aunor workers walked out, the union laid plans to take its troubles into Manitoba. A UMW spokesman said mineworkers' representatives would hold a public meeting in Winnipeg Thursday to outline the union's reasons for calling the mine strikers here and a smaller tie-up involving 720 employees of the Dominion Bridge Company there.

The union said it had explored every avenue for settlement and appealed to Ontario Labor Minister Charles Daley before calling the Aunor strike. Leo "Buck" Behie, its chief organizer in the Porcupine area, blamed the "uncompromising attitude of the gold management" for that and other walkouts.

Jubilee Staff Dance Profits For Polio Fund

A cheque for $262, dedicated to the war against polio, was presented to Jubilee Hospital administrator George Masters at a general meeting of the Jubilee Hospital Employees' Association Tuesday night.

The donation, raised through a dance held by the membership Friday at the Crystal Garden, brings to nearly $600 the amount turned over by the group. Making the presentation was president, Miss D. Burrows.

Mr. Masters thanked the employees and told them that thanks to their efforts the hospital would now be able to purchase a ventilator meter.

A ventilator meter measures the oxygen being consumed by a polio victim and the amount of carbon dioxide being expelled. By reading the meter, doctors can determine accurately when a patient requires to be placed in an iron lung.

Noted Collector Of Indian Relics, W. K. Porter Dies

W. Kelly Porter, manager of the Indian Craft Shop on Government Street and owner of a large collection of old Indian relics, died at his 1391 Oliver Street residence Tuesday. He was 62 years old.

Born at Burford, Ontario, Mr. Porter started collecting Indian relics when he was a boy. He travelled widely through the Canadian Northwest territories and Northern British Columbia where he obtained many of his native relics and works of art for his collection.

Prior to coming to Victoria eight years ago, Mr. Porter lived in Edmonton.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Frank, 2338 Heron Street, and a sister, Mrs. Minnie Hall of Brantford, Ont.

Funeral services will be held at the Sands Funeral Chapel on Friday at 3 p.m. Rev. Moir A. J. Waters will officiate. Interment will take place in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Swim Pool Needed As Sport Facility, Duncan Contends

DUNCAN—A survey to determine existing sports facilities and needs of this area will be undertaken by Cowichan District Community Centre Association.

Local opinion at present favors a swimming pool as the next major facility needed.

Barry Chaster, Duncan architectural graduate now taking a two-year community planning course at UBC, showed the association Tuesday night how it could develop its 10-acre grounds adjacent to Cowichan High School on the highway.

Softball and baseball clubs have asked to be included in any comprehensive grounds scheme.

BILL TO CONTROL BUILDING ON B.C. MAIN THOROUGHFARES

Legislation banning "ribbon development" on certain British Columbia highways was introduced in the Legislature Tuesday by Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi.

Purpose of the legislation is to prevent businesses springing up along new highways impeding the flow of traffic. This has happened on many new B.C. highways, turning them into slow-moving, accident-ridden roads.

The bill doesn't explain how access will be limited. It leaves considerable clarification up to passage of regulations.

20-60 Club

By TOM MERRIMAN

THUMBS DOWN ON KINSEY

No address was given Tuesday at the meeting of the Twenty-Sixty Club.

The 20 elderly self-styled philosophers became entangled in a bitter argument over the insistence of the scheduled speaker, Victor N. Smythe, to talk on the Kinsey report on the "Sexual Behavior of U.S. Women."

"That's no subject for discussion at our meetings," said D. G. Hew, founder of the club who was in the chair.

He endeavored to exercise the right of dictatorship, given a chairman under the club's constitution, to rule the speaker and the subject out of order.

"KEEP IT CLEAN"

"Let's keep it clean. Let's keep sex out of it," said Hew.

"As far as women are con- Kinsey doesn't rate as a scientist making any contribution to world's affairs. Sex to him is just animalism."

"I don't think his report means a thing and it is probably completely inaccurate.

"As far as men are concerned there are thousands of would-be Casanovas who would lie to high heaven to boast of conquests they never made.

As far as women are concerned I don't think one in a million interviewed would give truthful answers. Why should they?"

"We have ruled women out of the club. There are thousands of things to discuss besides women and the sex life of men and women," Hew said.

"But not many so interesting and not many of greater importance," interjected Smythe.

"That's your opinion," Hew retorted. "If you are permitted to give your speech, I for one, shall immediately resign from the club," he added.

"I move the resignation be accepted," Smythe quickly interrupted.

"DEFENSE OF VICE"

Grey-bearded J. L. Aubray, oldest member of the club, sought to pour oil on the troubled waters.

"I thoroughly agree with the chairman," he said.

"Sex should be eliminated from the discussions of the club.

"I am afraid, anyhow, we have not got off to a good start.

"We have had one address in defense of gambling, another in defense of swearing.

"Ours is a private club not particularly concerned with what the public may think, but if our discussions don't reach a higher plane we are in danger of deteriorating into a group of 20 ageing men running a "Defense of Vice Club" rather than a congenial group of traveled men with experience of life and philosophical inclinations, gathering weekly to discuss world events."

"A BUNCH OF TRASH"

"As far as I am concerned, the Kinsey report is a bunch of useless trash.

"I have read the newspaper reviews of the book and that's enough for me.

"I see no use for the report and no purpose it will serve except to provide a lot of behind-the-barn reading for a bunch of adolescents. It's no subject for this group," said Capt. W. Botha, who said he had spent more than 40 years of his life at sea.

"Some women break their wedding vows.

"So what!

"This has been going on since the beginning of time.

"It's nothing for the Twenty-Sixty Club to get hot and bothered about or to waste any time on.

"Nobody is ever going to be able to do anything about it.

"If Smythe wants to make a study of libidos, perversion, masochism or homosexuality let him do it on his own," Botha said as he thumped the table. "If he persists in introducing such subjects in this club either he goes out or I go out."

The captain proposed a vote be taken as to whether Smythe should give his address.

"You don't have to," said Smythe, jumping to his feet.

"I thought I was joining a group where the members would frankly and fearlessly discuss any subject of importance.

"To me you seem a bunch of puritanical old pussyfooters who are afraid even to talk about the facts of life, and stupid enough to still believe in Santa Claus."

Prawns and shrimps, with spiced sauce which the host said was his own secret recipe, were the refreshments.

Most other major sections of the market were higher.

Demand for steels started with the rush to buy Republican Steel after that company reported excellent third-quarter profits.

McIntyre led Canadian stocks on the downside, off ½. Hiram Walker fell ¼ and Dome Mines slipped ⅛. Distillers Seagrams advanced ⅛.

Canadian issues on the American stock exchange were unchanged.

Prices Higher

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were fractionally higher in slow stock market trading this afternoon. Senior metals, utilities, banks, and miscellaneous industrials were stronger while carriers dipped.

There were no wide movements of more than a point.

The firmer tone of the industrial list was reflected in mines and western oils in active trading. Gunnar Gold rose 45 cents to $8.60. In oils, Pacific Petroleum climbed 40 cents to $9.95, while Sweet Grass and Antone also rose.

Entry Into Canada Boosts Anglo Shares

LONDON (Reuters)—The London stock exchange opened on a firm note today with international considerations pushed into the background.

British government stocks and foreign bonds were the centre of interest. Germans and Japanese went steadily ahead all day.

News that Anglo-Iranian is likely to take up a sizeable interest in Triad Oil Company of Calgary, pushed Anglo-Iranian shares to a gain of about a quarter.

Mobile Plants To Process Alberta Gas

NEW YORK (CP)—Canadian Palmer Stendel Oil Corporation Tuesday announced plans for expenditure of close to $1,000,000 for the construction of two portable gas processing plants to be used in the gas fields of western Canada.

The company, which also plans to change its name to Progas of Canada Inc., a Deleware corporation, said the new plants will be the first of their kind in western Canada.

Through agreements with California Standard Co. and Canadian Gulf Oil Co., Canadian Palmer plans a portable plant on the Acheson field near Edmonton and another on property at Big Valley between Edmonton and Calgary.

The Big Valley plant is expected to be in operation within six months, the other by next June.

Canadian Palmer expects to sell natural gas produced by the Acheson plant to refineries and dry gas to utilities for the city of Edmonton.

Major advantages of portable equipment are mobility, relatively low cost of construction and operation and the fact that the unit can be expanded to a larger one if a permanent installation is found desirable.

Liverpool Wheat Pit Opens Dec. 1

Market Has Been Closed Since 1939

LONDON (CP)—The Liverpool Corn Trade Association has announced that trading in wheat futures will be resumed on the Liverpool grain market Dec. 1.

The announcement made Tuesday did not stipulate what the delivery months will be. Futures trading in wheat at Liverpool, formerly one of the great world markets ended in 1939 when war broke out.

The move has been expected ever since it was announced that trading in cereals and animal feed stuffs was being returned to private hands by the government which had taken over buying during the war and post-war years. Millers were able to resume purchases from private importers Aug. 30.

It is also expected that a futures trading market will be established at London, although barley and maize corn futures may be dealt with first. Both these commodities are scheduled to be added to Liverpool futures trading at a later date.

MAY BE POOR TIME

The Liverpool decision is noted editorially by the Financial Times as "surprising but welcome." It adds, however, that it is unfortunate that futures trading has to resume at a time when the entire grain trading field is "extremely depressed."

This is attributed partly to an overlapping of some late government imports with private imports and to large stockpiles of wheat in store at docks and mills.

Good harvest weather has also produced a rush of home-grown wheat to the U.K. market.

However, the newspaper says, the futures trading will enable millers to protect themselves against market fluctuations which might cause losses on their stocks of wheat.

Initial trade is expected to be slight. With reference to the yet undisclosed delivery months, it is possible that March deliveries may be the earliest that can be quoted when the market opens at Liverpool. By that time, the last of the previously-purchased stocks held by the ministry of food should have been cleared from United Kingdom ports to allow private importers full scope of an unencumbered market.

WON'T AFFECT CANADA WHEAT

WINNIPEG (CP) — Resumption of trading in wheat futures on the Liverpool grain market December 1 "won't change the picture in Canada as far as we can see at the moment," a spokesman for the Canadian Wheat Board said today.

Slow Grain Movement Causes Rail Layoffs

By the Canadian Press

Canada's railways have begun their annual autumn layoffs, due in the most part to the slowing of grain movements from the prairies to eastern Canada. More than 400 workers have already been dismissed.

More than half this number is in Manitoba, a Canadian Press survey shows. Some 225 more — mostly yardmen — are scheduled to be laid off there during the next 10 days.

REJOINING Canadian National Railways after a spell at Ottawa as co-ordinator of purchasing for defense production department, C. R. Snell will become CNR's general purchasing agent Nov. 1. Mr. Snell had been on loan to the Dominion government since 1950. As CNR purchasing agent he will succeed T. P. Harris, who is to retire on pension Oct. 31.

OIL REPORT:

7 Wells a Day Expected for Rest of Year

CALGARY (CP) — Drilling operations for western Canada's potential oil and gas pools slackened during September to a level expected to remain constant for the remainder of the year.

Most authorities predict drilling operations will remain at the same rate, which is about seven well completions a day. It is estimated that about 2,200 wells will have been drilled in western Canada during the 12 months.

The tally of 200 completions includes 97 oil wells, 18 potential gas wells and 85 abandonments, raising the score for the initial three-quarters of this year to 1,616 wells, about 180 a month. In nine months of drilling, operators obtained 894 indicated oil wells, 131 potential gas wells and 590 abandonments.

DUKE OF EDINBURGH IS THE NAME

Whatever You Do Don't Call Him Prince Philip

LONDON (CP) — Protocol note to Canadians who play host next year to the Duke of Edinburgh: Don't call him Prince Philip.

Except as an intimate or colloquial form of address, it simply isn't correct.

Formally, the full title is H.R.H. Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, Earl of Merioneth, Baron Greenwich of Greenwich in the county of London. For ordinary purposes, that boils down to the Duke of Edinburgh.

The point is that the duke is not by heredity a prince of the blood royal, that is of Britain's Royal House. Neither is he a Greek prince. He was born Prince Philip of Greece, but renounced his style and titles and became plain Lieut. Philip Mountbatten on Feb. 8, 1947.

When he married Princess Elizabeth, now the Queen, in November that year, the late King George VI proclaimed him H.R.H. Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, but did not confer upon him the titular style of prince.

Of course, say Buckingham Palace officials, close friends and even members of the household staff might well call him Prince Philip, but it just isn't done in court documents, official publications or newspapers that take such things seriously.

Millions 'Tossed Down Drain' In B.C.H.I.S. Says Strachan

The provincial government wiped out $2,200,000 in hospital insurance arrears last spring without even passing an order-in-council, Robert Strachan (C C F. Cowichan - Newcastle), charged in the Legislature Tuesday.

He made the statement during second reading of the government's supply bill for the remainder of the fiscal year.

The sum of $2,200,000 was tossed down the drain without as much as an order-in-council approving cancellation of the arreas," he said.

Mr. Strachan said he had searched the records in vain for an approving order.

"By what authority can the government throw away our money like that? I think some accounting is due."

He didn't raise a reply from the government benches.

Mr. Strachan was stressing the point that Premier Bennett should allow the opposition to ask his ministers questions about certain parts of the $172,000,000 supply bill—even if they were approved last spring.

Premier Bennett said earlier the opposition won't be allowed to ask the minister any questions across the floor of the House because the estimates already have been approved.

P. A. Gibbs (Lib., Oak Bay) said the government is facing a deficit of $6,000,000 this year.

He felt the "monkeying around" the government has done with its pay-as-you-go policy was mainly responsible.

He moved an amendment to the supply bill that the government reduce its "capital expenditure out of income" $31,300,000 appropriation to $21,300,000.

This, he said, would allow the government to borrow $10,000,000 to prevent a deficit at the end of the year.

Duke of Bedford Shot Himself Accidentally

TAVISTOCK, Eng. (CP) — A coroner's jury Tuesday found that the Duke of Bedford shot himself accidentally while sliding down a hill in a sitting position. He was 64.

Body of the eccentric duke, one of England's wealthiest men, was found Sunday, the head shattered by gunshot. Across his chest lay a double-barrelled shotgun, one shot fired.

"It was almost a family joke that he rarely walked down a steep slope. He always sat down and slid."

Arthritis Hits One in Twenty, Doctor Reveals

C.A.R.S. Aids Hundreds To Beat Crippler

There are more persons suffering from arthritis than from tuberculosis, heart disease, cancer and diabetes combined, according to Dr. G. Y. Brown.

Medical director for the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society clinic here he told the Victoria Chapter of the Registered Nurses' Association Tuesday night that one person in 20 will suffer from some form of rheumatic disease.

As yet there is no cure for this disease, he said.

But early diagnosis and treatment can alleviate a great deal of suffering and C.A.R.S., Victoria Branch, was organized here in 1949 to assist sufferers in the lower income bracket.

A clinic is set up in St. Joseph's Hospital for X-rays and laboratory tests and loan of crutches. Wheelchairs and physician's services are available free.

Elderly pensioners are among the majority of patients but many young people are walking about the city who would otherwise be bed-ridden cripples for life had not C.A.R.S. treatment been available.

C.A.R.S. is a member agency of Community Chest. Of every dollar collected in the present $210,686 drive, 2.7 per cent goes to C.A.R.S. Continued operation depends on Red Feather support.

THE GALLUP POLL

More Canadians Say Canada Independent

By Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Striking changes have taken place in the way Canadians view their relationship to Great Britain, over the past ten years.

Nowhere in Canada has this change been more striking than in French-speaking Canada. In 1942, the institute found and reported that 70 per cent of French-speaking Canadians thought of Canada as "dependent" on Great Britain. Today that majority has dropped to a minority of only 31 per cent.

In English-speaking Canada, the change has not been quite as marked.

Because the way ordinary, rank-and-file citizens view the status of Canada has a profound effect on their attitude towards foreign policy, the institute has just repeated a study it conducted first in 1942. In both studies, the sample was an accurate cross-section of the Canadian voting age population, and the question was identical:

"Do you think of Canada as an independent country, or as still dependent on Great Britain?"

In its 12 years of operation in Canada, the institute has rarely found as sharp a swing in public opinion as contained in the following table:

	English-speaking		French-speaking
	1942	Today	1942	Today
Independent	32%	73%	25%	44%
Dependent	42	17	70	31
Uncertain qualified	6	10	5	25
	100%	100%	100%	100%

One of the features in the above table is the big increase, in French Canada, in the number of persons who are undecided. This is typical of a situation in which public opinion is going through fairly rapid shifts from one point of view to another.

Visitors to Canada, and Canadians themselves, have sometimes deplored what they see as an absence of "national spirit," a failure to keep up mentally with the enhanced physical status of Canada. Today's poll indicates that the Canadian public is beginning to see Canada as a completely free and independent nation, member of a society of free and independent nations known as the British Commonwealth.

All those people who expressed an opinion on this question were asked:

"Would you tell me why you feel this way?"

The one in five (21 per cent) who think of Canada as dependent on Britain tended to believe (erroneously) that "Canada is still under British rule and the British Crown." Others replied that Canada was dependent on Great Britain in the field of trade, or exports.

EGG PRICES UP 4 CENTS

Grade A large advanced four cents a dozen; mediums, three cents, and small, five. The latest increase means housewives will be paying about 85 cents a dozen for grade A large in grocery outlets.

Wholesalers claim reason for the increase is that eggs are in short supply right across the country and there are no storage eggs to call upon.

10% Tax on Lumber, Mining Criticized at IWA Convention

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's new 10 per cent tax on lumber and mining profits over $25,000 came under criticism today at the annual convention of International Woodworkers of America (CIO).

Research director Ed Kenney of Portland, Ore., said the tax is discriminatory and economically unsound.

The new tax bill, sponsored by the Social Credit government, was adopted "in principle" by the Legislature last week. It now awaits final reading.

Mr. Kennedy said workers have the moral right to first consideration of any benefits obtained from the forests.

The lumber operator, too, must receive a fair profit, he added.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

In Ottawa the traditional Santa Claus parade has been cancelled this year because inflationary costs have sent the parade beyond the reach of the Board of Trade's budget.

As soon as I learned this fact, I became anxious to know whether this was an isolated case, or whether all of Mr. Claus' plans were being curtailed.

So I immediately placed a call to Mr. Claus' head office, and asked to speak to the great man himself.

"I am sorry," said a feminine voice over the long distance connection, "Mr. Claus is much too busy at this time of the year to speak with anyone, I might even say, he is not fit to speak to."

"Are you sure?" I asked.

"I should know," she said. "This is Mrs. Claus speaking."

I explained, as best I could, that I represented a daily newspaper, and felt the world should know whether or not Mr. Claus' activities would be seriously hampered by inflation this year.

"Mr. Claus," said his wife, with a giggle which ill-befitted the dignity of her years "has been inflated ever since I've known him. And no pillows needed, either."

"I am speaking," I said, "of the monetary type of inflation. Has Mr. Claus devised a way to keep costs down?"

"Of course," said Mrs. Claus. "Mr. Claus has even retained an efficiency expert. And with very good results, too."

"Excellent," I cried. "May I ask the details of this operation?"

"Better still, I will send you a tape recording of his final discussion with the efficiency expert. I will send it by special reindeer delivery."

"Better send it by Rudolph," I said, "it gets foggy around here."

Mr. Claus: Ho, ho, ho, Ho! Now that you've seen my factory, what have you to report?

Efficiency Expert; I regret to say, sir, there is a great deal wrong. First, your "Ho's."

Mr. Claus: Ho, ho, ho, Ho! What's wrong with my "Ho's?"

Expert: They take time. Time is money. You must cut down on your "Ho's."

Mr. Claus: Ho, ho—er, I mean, oh?

Expert: Yes, and on reindeer, too. Scrap your inefficient pack of outdated reindeer. Install a modern, two-reindeer power, dyna-stream jetpropulsion, hexaflow reciprocating motor.

Mr. Claus: But—what will happen to my reindeer?

Expert: They are expendable. Sleigh them. And as for your elves—you know what they do? They sing and whistle while they work. Stop them from singing and whistling, and you will get more work per elf.

Mr. Claus: But if I don't need so many elves—what happens to the others?

Expert: They are expendable. Sleigh them.

Mr. Claus: By the way, how much will you charge for this valuable advice?

Expert: Not sure yet—several thousands of dollars.

Mr. Claus: You know what? I just figured out how to save several thousands of dollars.

Expert: Mr. Claus—you don't mean. . . .

Mr. Claus: Yes—YOU'RE going for a sleigh ride. Ho, ho, ho, Ho!

I am glad to report, kiddies, Mr. Claus will be in action again this year—inflation or no inflation.

Poultryman Puzzled by Flock's Panic Death

With one of his dead chickens, Poultryman A. E. Goodwin surveys scene of carnage where 600 died in panic caused by mysterious night intruder. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

MYSTERIOUS NIGHT MARAUDER SUSPECT

Henhouse Panic Kills 600 Birds

When the poultryman went to the young fowls' house early today he found the birds heaped in a chilled mass.

Goodwin estimates the loss at about $800, in the value of the birds alone.

Heavy screens hanging from four-inch nails on a window overlocking the slaughter had been knocked from the opening, even though the door to the chickenhouse was unlocked.

The bodies of the chickens appeared to be unmarked, and according to Poultry Inspector Harry Pope, death had been caused by their huddling in panic and smothering each other.

"The thing that scared them must have been present for at least half an hour, though," he added.

One theory advanced is that a thief entered the unlocked door, climbed to the chicken-loft and tore away the screen from the window to throw the birds out to a helper.

HANDPRINT FOUND

A handprint on the window ledge in a spot usually protected by the overlapping screens suggested that a human was involved.

Whether an owl or other large bird or an animal could have struck the screen with force enough to loosen it is doubtful.

Mr. Goodwin has been plagued by chicken thieves in the past, however. Last year 200 birds were taken by a persistent thief who escaped twice when seen and chased by the poultry farmer. Earlier, youngsters killed almost a hundred of his birds by throwing bottles at them.

He said that he had been told by a neighbor this week that a truck had been seen near the chickenhouse at 2 a.m. when the neighbor was returning from work.

"Someone must have a spite against me," said Mr. Goodwin.

Run over in a traffic accident a year ago, which left him with an almost useless left wrist, he says he lost $3,000 to court costs and medical bills.

"And now this," he said. "You can't even get insurance against chicken loss unless it is by fire."

Laing Protests to Premier Long Legislature Sittings

Liberal Leader Arthur Laing today registered with Premier Bennett an "emphatic protest at the manner in which legislation is being pushed through the Legislature."

Mr. Laing, noting the House had sat until nearly 1 a.m. on occasions, said:

"This is legislation by exhaustion."

The Liberal leader's statement is included in a letter to Premier Bennett delivered this morning.

"Only on two occasions have we been advised beforehand of the order of business and then with only one hour's notice," Mr. Laing said.

He pointed out that many members had to attend committee meetings at 9.30 a.m., even though the House sat until early morning.

In the Canadian House of Commons, Mr. Laing said, the House leader, upon adjournment each day, details fully the order of business for the succeeding day. This enables concentration by the members on those bills or items of business in which they have particular interest or knowledge.

"I am not suggesting, Mr. Premier, that this cat and mouse policy of advancing the public business has been initiated by you or by your government. Old-timers here tell me "twas ever thus.' It is a policy so inimical to the public interest that it should at once be abandoned," Mr. Lang said.

He could not see why the session had to last only one month.

"I think we are passing much legislation that we will regret. The present drive to get out of here will add nothing to the quality of the work we do.

"I have no objection to night sittings of a reasonable length, but physical exhaustion is the parent of mental sloth, and this is no climate in which to adjudicate upon the province's laws."

Passenger Injured When Cars Collide

A passenger was injured when cars driven by Carl F. Johnson, 2758 Forbes and Raymond Hayes, 2593 Vancouver, were in collision at Burdett and Blanshard at 7.10 p.m. Tuesday.

A second collision between T. J. Jepp, 1953 Bouchier, and C. H. Shanks, 2655 Dufferin, at Fort and Pandora, at 6.28 p.m., caused medium damage, police reported.

Murder Trial Jury May Get Case Today

A Nanaimo Assize Court was expected to retire today to reach a verdict in the case of Douglas Winter Cook, Duncan, charged with the murder of his father in Duncan, March 25, 1949.

Most of today was spent in presentation of arguments by Crown Counsel F. S. Cunliffe, QC, and Alfred Bull, QC, defense counsel, of Vancouver.

Mrs. R. Olsen, first witness in the trial, testified that she had been in the Westwall Confectionery and Restaurant in Duncan March 25, 1949, when the older Cook was shot, and had seen the accused run from the premises.

Mr. Cunliffe said he would produce witnesses to show the accused had borrowed a gun, had it after the shooting, and had given it to another man.

Mr. Bull indicated he would introduce testimony of psychiatrists.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

In the recently discovered island of Kalota, arithmetic was found to have developed along very strange lines. This was one of the points mentioned by Dr. Hall when he returned from his first visit to that strange land. He showed us a little book of multiplication tables, as used by Kalotan children: there we saw that 18 times 25 is 474. What would be the product of 4 and 5, as shown in that little book?

Tuesday's Answer: They could do the job together in 1 hour and 40 minutes.

He was the second to die from the disease at the West Coast General Hospital in a month, the first victim being a baby.

Alberni district doctors have warned residents that polio continues to be active in the district with 18 cases reported to date.

Military Condemns Canadian Highways

Unfit to Meet War's Demands

Canada's roads do not pass the test of military necessity, according to a study of Canadian thoroughfares now in progress at National Defense Headquarters.

The Canadian Good Roads Association convention in the Empress Hotel today heard this statement from Lieut.-Col. D. W. Cunnington, commandant of the Royal Canadian School of Military Engineering at Chilliwack, B.C.

"It is obvious Canadian roads must be greatly improved to support the needs for industrial mobilization and civil defense in time of war," he said.

Col. Cunnington said the army report has so far compiled data on 332 routes, covering more than 50,000 miles of highway in Canada.

"The study has shown that in most regions there are sufficient roads, but they are unsatisfactory for large-scale military movement," he said.

BOTTLENECKS

"Bottlenecks are so common, it is almost impossible to travel more than 100 miles without encountering a serious one," he pointed out.

Narrow bridges create the most serious bottlenecks, he said, because two-way military traffic requires a minimum bridge width of 24 feet. Fewer than half of more than 3,000 bridges so far examined are suitable, and one route of 563 miles crossing a Canadian province has 160 bridges, of which only 21 are 24 feet wide.

Low bridges and bridges restricted to gross loads of less than 20 tons also cause serious bottlenecks, he said.

"One of these bridges can make an entire route unsuitable for military traffic. One route of 128 miles between two large cities has seven of these bridges. In time of war, the immediate military situation is either to strengthen the bridge or find an alternate route, but both sacrifice valuable time.

"On one route, to by-pass a particular narrow, low-load-capacity bridge, requires a detour of 112 miles."

BIG IMPROVEMENT

Col. Cunnington said Canada's roads have improved immeasurably since 1945, but from a military point of view the time for relaxing the present construction program is not in sight.

"A carefully integrated plan for all new highway construction is essential," he said. "A country the size of Canada with a relatively small population cannot afford to realize anything but the maximum return from its highway investment.

"There are many problems to be overcome before Canada will have roads suitable to her military needs," he concluded.

VICTORIA AMONG FIRST FOUR CITIES IN TRAFFIC CONTROL

Victoria ranks among the first four Canadian cities in terms of good traffic control and driving habits, according to a report to be delivered Thursday to the Canadian Good Roads Association Convention in Empress Hotel.

A recent survey made by Jacques Barriere, Montreal traffic engineer who will address the convention Thursday afternoon, puts Vancouver first, followed by Calgary, Victoria, and Edmonton.

Worst city in Canada is Ottawa, according to Mr. Barriere's point system. It is ranked as minus 16, compared with Vancouver's plus 21.

Cars Swamp Highways, Guardian Group Told

Motorcar Production Outpacing Road-Builder, Says Newfoundlander

A man-made deluge of automobiles, pouring from the assembly lines, has far outdistanced the building of roads to accommodate them, Hon. E. S. Spencer, minister of public works for Newfoundland, said this morning in his presidential report to the 34th annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association in Empress Hotel.

More than 600 delegates are registered for the convention, first to be held in Victoria in 31 years.

"Man has been making automotive vehicles at a tremendous rate, transforming our society, revolutionizing the marketing of merchandise, changing our travel habits," Mr. Spencer said.

"But we have overlooked or accepted our inability to build the roads we need for these machines."

The developing crisis of roads and streets is one of the highest ranking problems of municipal and provincial governments, he said, and it is the federal government's problem, too, because it affects the national interest.

MODEST PROGRESS

"Last year in Canada, governments made gratifying progress in reconstructing their roads and streets," he reported, "but measured in terms of need, the progress was modest.

"Registration of motor vehicles in Canada reached a high of 3,100,000 at the end of the year, and will be close to 3,500,000 at the end of the coming year. The congestion will increase and we will fall farther behind in the race with the assembly line.

"I do not contend it is a bad thing to make motor cars; only that it is a bad thing we cannot adequately serve motor cars with modern roads.

"There is nothing at present to encourage the hope we are going to witness any miraculous improvement in our plight in the near future. But we can strive for and achieve a sustained, high level of road building."

The opening session of the CGRA also heard a message from Robert O. Swain, executive director of the International Road Federation. Speaker at the luncheon meeting today was George A. Bowie, of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, Akron.

TOTEM THEATRE GETS REPRIEVE

Creditors Collaborating To Save Life of Theatre

The Totem Theatre has been given a new lease on life.

It's a short-term lease, however.

Creditors of the professional theatrical company met Tuesday and agreed to let the company have one more month to get on its feet financially. They agreed not to press for collection of accounts outstanding and to extend what credit the company needs for another four weeks.

Co-producers of Totem, Thor Arngrim and Stuart Baker, plan to resort to comedy works to pull in the crowds necessary to bring the theatre out of the red. Comedies have proved most popular with audiences here so that's what Totem intends to provide.

Next week's play will be the English comedy, "Castle in the Air." The following week the American hit, "The Moon Is Blue," will be scheduled and the week after that the French-Canadian story, "The Happy Time." The fourth week will probably be taken up by a sophisticated-type of comedy by Noel Coward.

The Greek tragedy "Antigone" plays at the Totem until the end of this week. Last night's attendance was 208. Monday's box office was 247.

The producers have said hey must have at least 300 patrons a night if the theatre is to stay in business.

50 Rinks Groom for Curling As Season Competition Starts

The curling season officially opens this week-end at Victoria Curling Club with a novelty mixed bonspiel Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Of the 50 rinks competing, two are from Duncan and one from Vancouver. Remainder are city rinks.

Two separate competitions will be held, first-round losers entering the consolation events. Prizes will be awarded winning and runner-up rinks in each competition.

For the Candlelit Dinner: These Can't Burn Down!

By PENNY SAVER

Dinner by candle-light . . . ah, how romantic! And when your candles are burning inside a refillable golden shell, it's even more romantic. Ordinary slim and graceful tapers look perfectly lovely at the beginning of the meal, but just you take a look at them after the final course has been served . . . hardly romantic at all! All you have left is a slowly-fading stub of a candle that's a dripping mess of wax.

As for the shell, which encases the candle, I think it's made of some sort of lightweight metal. Into it you insert a one-half inch (in diameter) candle, which is attached to an automatic feeder. The feeder pushes upwards as the candle burns. Also available in silver, green, red, black and white, these candle cases will fit any size holder . . . $7.50 a pair.

* * *

Guess you're wondering now, if it's possible to get refills for above-mentioned shells—or cases! Definitely, yes! In a box of refills, you get 12 candles for $1.25.

* * *

If the frog you use isn't quite heavy enough to withstand the weight of the larger autumn flowers, let me suggest that you buy some plastic clay, made for anchoring frogs in your flower bowl. I can guarantee that you'll be able to "unstick" the clay when flowers have faded . . . 35 cents.

* * *

Hair oil can make a mess of the back of your chesterfield, so why not invest in a clear plastic chesterfield back cover? Costs just 76 cents.

AS WE LIVE

In This Case Have Your Mother With You

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

There are so many things that can happen to the aged that it is unwise for them to live alone. That is why the young woman who wrote the following letter should not encourage her mother to live so:

Hurlock

(Q) "My mother is a widow, 66 years old, and in pretty fair health. I too am a widow and have lived with my mother and my two children in the house I'm paying for since my husband's death. Now I am planning to remarry. Mother draws a small monthly cheque from welfare and this takes care of most of her needs. My fiance says mother should live with us. Do you think that will work out? He says mother and I are so close that she would be completely lost without me. My sister has a house she doesn't need and she and mother think she would do better living in her home alone. Wouldn't it be wrong for me to let her live alone?"

(A) It would definitely be wrong. It wouldn't be so bad if it were an apartment house because there would be other people near her in case of some emergency.

Since you and your mother have been living together since your husband died and since you and she get along so well, there is no reason to think that things will not continue to run smoothly. The only hitch I can see is the possibility that your mother and your new husband will not get along well.

From what you have said about his reactions to her living with you, it sounds to me as if they would get along well enough. You can tell from both their reactions now how they feel about each other.

Having her with you of course would be a great help in many ways. If you and your husband wanted to go out in the evenings, or for an occasional week-end trip, you would know that your children would be in good hands so long as their grandmother was in the house. It is important, during the early days of marriage, for a wife to have some freedom, especially if it is the first marriage for her husband. No man wants to return from his wedding trip and be tied down hand and foot by another man's child. Your mother can give you some of the freedom you and your husband deserve.

As a special service to our readers Dr. Hurlock has written a 64-page booklet, "You and Your Problems." For your copy send 15c in coin with a self-addressed stamped envelope to this newspaper.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Does Your Job Tire You? Study It — Find New Interest

A letter just arrived which says:

"Dear Josephine Lowman:

"I am a victim of that tired feeling. I would like to know what occupation requires the least energy. I have tried a salesgirl job, typing and filing, and they all tire me out."

If anyone knows, please let me know and I will apply for the position immediately! The only occupations I can think of which qualify — such as thumb sucking and rocking in a chair—are so dull!

Actually, boredom is one of the great secrets of fatigue. If you do not like what you are doing, if you are not interested in it, it is certain to make you tired. It may even give you a backache or cause you to break out in a rash.

Then what is a poor soul to do? Most people have to work or are bored if they do not. There is some creative work which urges one on with its fire and excitement, and most jobs could be vitalized by a goal to shoot for. However, so often the job a man or woman holds down is exhausting because it is boring.

Here are a few suggestions:

Try to find out what you would really like to work at, what would interest you. If you are not trained for this then keep at the potboiler job until you can save enough money to do something else. Always keep your goal in mind. This does not mean that you loaf on the potboiler job because you must do as well as you can so that you can sooner do what you want to. Anyway you owe a certain responsibility to any work for which you are being paid.

The goal is the thing that matters! Those who have no goal are never happy. Make it a reasonable goal but one you like. It would be silly and frustrating to aspire to being a model if you are 5 feet, 5 inches tall, have piano legs and round shoulders, and weigh 200 pounds. BUT HAVE A GOAL.

Maybe you do not know of anything you especially want to do, and know how to do nothing except what you are doing, but it bores you. There is only one answer to this question: bring more of yourself to the job you ARE doing. Once you get a big hunk of self-investment in something, you are apt to become interested in it. If you are filing, devise techniques which will make your work more efficient and productive.

Study about what you are doing. I have often thought of this in connection with the woman in the home. If she would only realize that nutrition and child psychology are highly technical and complex subjects she might understand how important her knowledge of them could be. This knowledge would have a great impact on the health and happiness of her family. There is no job which will not become more attractive in the light of imaginative and intelligent self-investment. Remember the man who built a better mouse trap than anyone else? The world beat a path to his door.

You may not want the world to beat a path to your door but we are all happier if we make a change or "give" of ourselves.

If you would like to have my leaflet, "Individual Happiness," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 65 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Rings Exchanged At Tabernacle

Gloria May Hopkins and William Richard Bennett repeated wedding vows in a double-ring ceremony held recently in Glad Tidings Tabernacle. Rev. C. B. Smith officiated and wedding music was played by Miss Gwen Caley.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Hopkins, 3347 Oak Street, was given in marriage by her father. Her wedding gown was of traditional white satin styled with net yoke outlined with lace roses and full skirt en train. A pearl trimmed satin band held her veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. B. MacNutt was matron of honor, Miss Donna Hopkins, sister of the bride, and Miss V. Anastasiou, bridesmaids, and Miss L. Smith, junior bridesmaid. The attendants wore frocks of shading from violet to pale mauve and carried colonial bouquets of yellow flowers.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bennett of Calgary, had Don Crabb as best man. Ray Huckin and Bill MacNutt acted as ushers.

A reception was held at Terry's Rose Room, where the bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centred with a three-tiered cake. Arnold Smith proposed the toast.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Los Angeles and Calgary, the bride traveled in a pale gold suit with navy accessories and corsage of yellow orchids.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber (Mother of 5)

Activity is just as important as rest to the young infant. As a matter of fact, baby should be encouraged to kick his little feet and wave his little arms. A few minutes free exercise before bath time (minus clothes) is excellent. And last, but not least, a good laugh, several times a day is not only healthful for baby but oh so rewarding for you.

* * *

Right start for little upstarts. Baby scheduled for spoon-fed foods soon? Why not try starting him off with Gerber's Cereals? All five—Mixed, Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, and Wheat—are pre-cooked, ready to serve and designed to help make little bodies grow big and sturdy. Made by the folks who make "babies their business . . . their only business," these fine cereals have the nice-to-the-tongue texture, the pleasing, bland flavor that infants love. For free samples of Gerber's famous Cereals, just write me, Mrs. Dan Gerber, Box, 17, Toronto 18, Canada.

* * *

In the bag. A mother we've heard of recently uses a plastic shoe bag to store baby's empty nursing bottles (tacked on the back of the kitchen door). Pockets hold bottles perfectly, the plastic is water-proof and easy to wash. Worth a try for mothers who have limited working space.

* * *

Specialty of the house. Gerber's Strained Orange Juice—processed just for wee ones. Made from tree-ripened oranges, selected for high Vitamin C content and mild natural flavor. Specially pasteurized too, and extra finely strained to go through nursing bottle nipples easily. Gerber's Orange Juice is truly a "natural" for baby's daily Vitamin C needs.

Vote Registration In August Highest In Nation's History

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's August general election saw the highest voter registration in Canada's history and the second-highest popular vote.

Preliminary figures released Tuesday by Nelson Castonguay, chief electoral officer, showed an eligible voters' list of 8,384,178 and 5,640,837 votes cast in the 261 ridings where contests were held.

The winning Liberal party slipped slightly from its 1949 vote total, and the CCF popular count also dropped. The Progressive Conservatives and Social Credit picked up votes, the latter making the heaviest gain in ballots.

The voter-registration figure was an all-time high by a good margin, exceeding the previous high of 6,952,445 in the election four years ago.

The chief electoral officer estimated unofficially that about 68 per cent of those who had a chance to exercise the franchise did so.

The ballot figures indicate that the Liberals failed by a whisker to get half the total votes cast. Their 2,819,038 represented 49.98 per cent. In 1949, they had 2,929,391 for a fraction of a decimal point more than 50 per cent.

The Progressive Conservatives bettered their 1949 vote slightly while gaining 10 seats. They got 1,751,673 votes (31 per cent) compared with 1,742,276 (30 per cent) four years ago.

The CCF, though they almost doubled their Commons representation from 13 to 23, slipped on the vote. The Socialists got 636,191 (11 per cent) as against a 1949 total of 782,410 (13 per cent).

Social Credit made the big percentage gain as it rang up 305,909 (5.4 per cent) compared with 139,815 (2.3 per cent) in 1949. The Social Credit seats rose from 10 to 15.

The 100 Communist candidates this time received 59,693 votes, up from 32,623 in 1949. None was elected.

CPA PILOT FLIES NON-STOP PACIFIC HOP IN 15 HOURS

A giant Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-6B set down at Vancouver International Airport with 43 passengers and a crew of seven after flying non-stop from Misawa, Japan.

The flight was commanded by Capt. T. A. Tweed of Vancouver, with Capt. R. C. Ford as relief pilot. Taking advantage of the favorable winds found in the far north at this time of the year, Capt. Tweed covered the 4,500-mile Great Circle route via the Aleutians in 14 hours and 42 minutes for an average speed of 305 miles an hour.

The CPA version of the Douglas DC-6B is the longest range commercial aircraft in use on the Pacific.

SEVEN TIMES AMOUNT ESTIMATED

Lower Arrow Lakes Tunnel Lining Costs $821,436

VANCOUVER (CP) — Concrete lining of a two-mile mountain tunnel on Lower Arrow Lake cost $821,436—seven times the amount estimated—the chief engineer of the B.C. Power Commission testified Tuesday.

A. W. Lash was replying to the Whatshan royal commission probe counsel C. W. Tysoe, QC, at the start of the second week's hearings.

He said 8,927 feet of concrete lining were needed instead of the estimated 1,165. His estimate, he said, would have cost $116,171.

The final amount of lining used was decided after an examination of the tunnel by the Vancouver geologist Dr. Victor Dolmage.

Tuesday was the beginning of the second week of hearings before Mr. Justice J. V. Clyne into two mud slides which crippled the huge hydro development last August.

NEW COUNSEL

The second week opened with H. H. Griffin representing the power commission in place of Alfred Bull, QC, who withdrew Friday after complaining of press attacks on the power commission and on his own professional integrity.

No mention was made of the incident Tuesday and Mr. Griffin, formerly Mr. Bull's junior, automatically took over.

Mr. Griffin said a report on the slides by an eastern engineering firm would be on hand by Wednesday.

A letter from Mayor J. E. Fitzwater of Kamloops appealed for further investigation of the evidence that fissures in the wall of the power plant tunnel were allowing water to escape and that they could threaten the plant again in the future.

Mr. Lash said measurement of the leakage was begun in 1951 but was discontinued in June, 1952, 14 months before the two mud slides knocked out the Whatshan plant. He said he believed at the time the leakage was a natural occurrence with any tunnel and he had not worried about twin streams of water cutting down the mountainside.

He said the flow was five cubic feet a second and that he would not have become concerned until such a flow had reached 10 or 15 cubic feet a second.

Mr. Fitzwater's letter said the hearings had brought to light a number of facts which should be investigated, but Mr. Justice Clyne said the letter could not be treated as evidence. However, he said he was certain evidence would be produced on the points covered.

REPORTED OFF ALASKA COAST

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—The Anchorage Times reported Tuesday that an unidentified submarine and airplane, believed to be Russian, observed at close range the activities of the Alaska national guard on St. Lawrence Island recently.

The report has been denied officially by military authorities but The Times said its story is from authoritative sources. It said both the plane and submarine were painted black and neither bore any identification marks.

St. Lawrence Island is about 25 miles from the international date line and less than 50 miles from the southeastern tip of Siberia.

IWA Convention Defeats Attempt of California Local To Brand Chambers of Commerce Communists and Nazis

Delegates supported a motion of non-concurrence in a California local's resolution in favor of amending the constitution to expel any IWA member accepting membership in a chamber. The other groups are now covered by constitutional action.

A Duncan local resolution also failed to receive approval. Local 1-89 sought to have a local membership exonerated of dues payments for work time lost from a strike when the strike exceeds a month.

A resolution also was defeated which asked that convention delegates decide all constitutional amendments except those dealing with officers' elections and monetary natures. Victoria 1-118 had sought election of officers on the convention floor.

The delegates endorsed resolutions favoring national social security and health programs and favored opposition to discrimination against women workers in pay, hiring, up-grading, training, layoff or similar procedures.

TWO for the SHOW

AA (Oscar Class)

BB (Worthwhile)
(B For Rainy Days)
C (To put to time)

(A) "THE CADDY" (Capitol)—If this latest Martin and Lewis saga had a zippier ending it could take its place alongside the funniest the zanies have ever made. But slack ending or not, "The Caddy" is a very humorous picture.

You have to like Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis.

If you don't then give this one a miss.

Speaking personally, this column is very high on the boys. We think Jerry Lewis is a comedian with a difference, in his own gruesome way a comedian loaded with talent and a freshness that is sometimes startling. Come to think of it, the Lewis man is startling no matter how you look at it—or him. And Dean Martin, with his smooth pop voice and easy-going manner makes a splendid "straight" man.

The plot, in brief:

Joe Anthony (Martin) and Harvey Miller (Lewis) are a couple of boys who would rather play golf than work. Harvey is a great golfer but too nervous to appear before galleries, so he takes over the job of helping his sidekick perfect his game. He coaches him so well that Joe becomes a fairway sensation and is able to enter big-time tourneys against the likes of Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Byron Nelson, Julius Boros, Jimmy Thomson and Lighthorse Harry E. Cooper. But somewhere in the meteoric rise of Joe the other half of the team, the poor caddy, gets lost. Amidst the horseplay Joe has ample opportunity to sing sweet ballads to Donna Reed while Harvey makes with the love (what a horrendous thought!) to Barbara Bates.

As though Lewis isn't peculiar enough, Norman Taurog does queer things with the Hartmann-Arnold screen play. The two are shown first as a star song-and-dance-patter team and then, through flashbacks, how they got to be that way.

Personally, we found it most confusing.

But then M & L plots always seem to confuse us.

Maybe that's why we are beginning to dote on them so much.

Arbitration Set Up In Oil Exploration

Legislation aimed at overcoming differences between Peace River farmers and oil and natural gas explorers was introduced in the Legislature Tuesday night by Lands and Forests Minister Robert Sommers.

A bill, which will become the Right of Entry Arbitration Act, sets up procedures which must be followed by a board of arbitration set up by the government earlier.

The tribunal will determine compensation payable by the operator to the farmer whose land is being explored.

The situation will be further clarified when the government frames a new Petroleum and Natural Gas Act next year.

SOPRANO OPENS SEASON

Canadian Radio Star Sings to Victorians

PHYLIS DILWORTH

BETTY PHILLIPS

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

First of the season's musical events at the Arts Centre of Greater Victoria is a song recital by one of Vancouver's outstanding vocalists, lyric soprano, Betty Phillips. Miss Phillips is to be accompanied by gifted pianist, Phylis Dilworth.

The program selected for the recital on Friday is an unusually attractive and comprehensive one and includes many numbers that are high favorites with music lovers. Handel, Rachmaninoff, Rimsky-Korsakoff, de Falla, Faure, Debussy, Strauss, Wagner, Michael Head and Arthur Benjamin are among the composers represented making the recital a true "feast of song."

Miss Phillips was born, educated, and received her musical and dramatic training in Vancouver where she was a pupil of Avis Phillips. Her career actually started when she appeared in Toronto on "Singing Stars of Tomorrow" a few years ago. She is heard weekly on Trans-Canada program, "Leicester Square" and has been a star of Theatre Under-the-Stars productions for the last five years.

She played the lead in the Victoria Starlight Theatre's productions of "Chu-Chin-Chow" and "Roberta," has been heard with Phylis Dilworth in CBC's "Wednesday Night" recitals and was the only local artist to be sponsored by Famous Artists in a concert. On the dramatic side, she has taken part in Totem Theatre productions in Vancouver of "Light Up the Sky," "Biography" and "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

WELL KNOWN HERE

Phylis Dilworth, as well known in Victoria as she is in Vancouver, for her brilliance and artistry at the piano, is heard frequently over CBU in the role of accompanist. She is married to Bill Inglis, former Victorian, who is now music producer for the CBC.

Aria: Rejoice Greatly ("The Messiah") — Handel
Floods of Spring — Rachmaninoff
Before My Window — Rachmaninoff
The Rose and the Nightingale — Rimsky-Korsakoff
Hopak — Modeste Moussorgsky
The Moorish Cloth — Manuel de Falla
Nana — Manuel de Falla
Seguidilla Murciana — Manuel de Falla
Rencontre — Faure
Flute de Pan — Debussy
Carnaval — Fourdrain
Zueignung — R. Strauss
Nacht — R. Strauss
Dich Theure Halle — Wagner
A Piper — Head
The Cherry Tree — Hamilton
Jan (A Creole Lullaby) — Benjamin
Linstead Heath (Jamaican folksong) — Benjamin

VISITORS FOLLOW DRUMS

main streets, where peddlers have set up tiny canvas backed stalls to sell garishly colored wares . . . balls on strings, wooden getas, candies and fruits; where there is a whole block given over to a gay way, with the Japanese equivalent for crown and anchor, horse racing, pitch and toss and bingo; where spellers, including women in long, tight, black trousers, white blouses and wide brimmed straw hats, rattle off long sentence, in Japanese advertising the thrills of the side shows . . . snake eaters, fire eaters, sword swallowers.

JAPANESE WRESTLING

In a bamboo enclosed field, sumo (Japanese wrestling) is going strong. We've pushed our way through the streets for country folk stream into the city for the days of the festival and the fair, increasing the density of the crowd. It's the big holiday of the year for them and they are ready to enjoy it. They carry food in their colorful furoskis . . . and in some cases the brown-skinned, shaven-headed farmers, in their ankle-length trousers, long shirts and heavy boots, are quite openly cradling a big bottle of cheap saki in their arms. And when they meet friends, they stop for a drink, a giggle and a wise crack right in the centre of any crowd.

At Suwa Shrine, heart of this religious festival, the sight is beyond my powers of description. It is the gaudiest, maddest conglomeration I've ever seen.

BRIGHTEST GARB

The big square with its waving palm trees is filled with pedlars and their colorful stalls. Nearly all the Japanese women going to the shrine are wearing their brightest kimonos. The children are dressed in bright reds and blues with paper flowers in their hair and around their ankles.

At the far side of the square a great torii marks the entrance to the Suwa Shrine courtyard and from there, rising upward to the hillside, are more than 100 stone steps. Every so often their is another torri and on each side of the steps from bottom to top are more pedlars, their booths making a frame for the weathered grey stone of the steps.

And from early morning to late at night those steps have been crowded with Japanese people, who climb to the top to ring a temple gong for luck and give their yearly offering to the temple. A steady stream that grows in numbers as the day progresses. Small children are carried up in their parents arms. Old people are assisted by their children. No one falters. They all look up to the shrine . . . and pass steadily ahead.

CITY-WIDE SALE

Adding to the excitement in the city on this three-day festival, is the fact that every store in Nagasaki, whether on a main street or a narrow lane, is having a sale. Long red banners, covered with black Japanese letters tell us this. Bargains are many.

So the country folk are buying for the winter and yen is changing hands at an amazing rate.

As daylight fades and darkness takes over, the scene becomes even more extravagant. The lights come on and the city is a different sort of place again.

The bamboo leaves on the slender trees in front of the tiny stores, turn to silver in the lights. The tiny parasols take on an added red and blue. The torii at the entrance to Suwa Shrine is etched sharply against the green of the hill by special lights placed at its base. And the shrine itself, above, twinkles with hundreds of lights.

All up and down the stone steps lights swing from lanterns, touching the heads of the hundreds of Japanese . . . and western visitors, too . . . who continue to climb to the top.

All day long and far into the night, in special courtyards at individual shrines in the city, festival dances are presented, based on the traditional legends of old Japan.

ANCIENT RITUAL

In one compound I saw 20 young boys, about 10 or 12 years of age, dressed in brilliant blue and gold ceremonial robes. They performed the ancient sword dance of the samurai, and the special spear dance with fan, with all the dramatic poise and grace of their ancestors.

And yet, no westerner in the country should miss it. For I have a feeling that in Nagasaki at festival time you find, for a moment, you come closer to the people and perhaps true spirit of Japan.

Assessment Equalization Bill Rapped

'Dictatorship' Says P. Rupert Liberal

The government's new assessment equalization bill is the sort of legislation which leads people to talk about dictatorship, Bruce Brown (Lib., Prince Rupert) said in the Legislature Tuesday.

"If enough of this type of legislation is piled on, we'll have dictatorship right here," he said.

Mr. Brown was speaking in the second reading debate of the plan to equalize assessment for school purposes throughout the province. It is the basis of the Rolston formula on school financing. Only the Liberals voted against the bill.

The legislation aims at providing uniform municipal assessment so that education financing can be placed on an equitable footing. It will place $150,000,000 worth of industrial machinery and fixtures in municipalities on the assessment roll for the first time — for school purposes only.

Mr. Brown objected to the "great and wide" powers of the assessment commissioner who will be appointed under the new act.

The municipal assessor, he said, must follow the commissioner's ruling. If the commissioner doesn't like the local assessor's assessment, he can change it or send a man in to do an assessment and charge the municipality for the work.

HAS NO APPEAL

"The court of revision, like the commissioner, is appointed by the cabinet. And so is the assessment appeal board.

"If a person is not satisfied, he has no appeal other than to someone appointed by the cabinet," said Mr. Brown.

He said the municipal governments are losing their autonomy because of such legislation.

He said he could see the "death knell of civic administrations."

Dr. Larry Giovando (PC, Nanaimo), said the taxing of industrial machinery simply means the government is "taxing efficiency."

If an operator has a good business and installs new machinery, he will be taxed heavier.

Rockefeller's Divorce to Cost Him $5.5 Million

CHICAGO (AP) — Barbara (Baba) Rockefeller and her estranged husband, Winthrop Rockefeller, have agreed to a divorce settlement in excess of $5,500,000, a Chicago lawyer in close touch with the case said Tuesday night.

The settlement was reported to be a record one in any divorce action.

The lawyer, who asked that his name not be used, said the terms are these:

Barbara, 36, a daughter of a Pennsylvania coal miner, is to receive $2,000,000 in cash or securities.

A $1,000,000 trust fund will be established for her, guaranteeing her an income of $20,000 a year for life.

Two additional trust funds totaling $2,500,000 are to be set up for the benefit of the couple's son, Winthrop Paul Rockefeller, 5.

Traffic Outspeeding Highway Development

A 39 per cent increase in this year's membership of the Canadian Good Roads Association is reported by R. I. Raycroft, membership chairman, who is here for the 34th annual convention.

"It took 18 years for Canada's automobile fleet to reach 1,000,000, another 15 years to reach 2,000,000, but in the past four years another 1,000,000 vehicles have been registered in Canada," Mr. Raycroft, Canadian president of Firestone Tire, pointed out.

"Unfortunately, neither adequate roads nor drivers' safety records have kept pace with the tremendous growth," he added.

"Today, with 3,250,000 motor vehicles, traffic is already clogging our roads and streets, causing obstruction and delay which causes Canadian business millions of dollars each year.

"Twenty-five years from now it is estimated there will be 6,000,000 vehicles, and traffic congestion will become steadily more critical unless more and better roads are built. More and more it is becoming evident the concerted action of government, business, and the individual is needed to meet the urgent problem of roads.

"Only long-range planning, intensive road building, modern and efficient engineering methods and research can give Canada the good roads it must have. These are the objectives of the Canadian Good Roads Association," Mr. Raycroft said.

Equipment Engineers At Good Roads Meet

The managing secretary, Arthur MacNamara, members of the Vancouver local groups, and representatives of other groups across Canada also are attending.

Reflective Bicycle Safety Tape Urged

A suggestion that reflective safety tape should be issued with every bicycle license was referred to Esquimalt Police Commission by the council at a Tuesday night meeting.

The idea was submitted by S. J. Crawley, 60 Beach Drive. He felt that use of the tape by cyclists should be compulsory.

TAX PAYMENTS AT ESQUIMALT SET NEW HIGH

A greater percentage of Esquimalt people have paid up their taxes this year than any year in recent history, it was disclosed at an Esquimalt council meeting Tuesday night.

"It's magnificent," said Reeve A. C. Wurtele.

Almost 95 per cent of the $244,624 tax levy has been collected . . . a total of $226,837.

In 1952 91.41 per cent was collected. In 1951 the percentage was 92.07. The 1953 figure of 94.06, is best ever. Only $17,786.88 remains outstanding.

Gates Locked To Gravel Pit On Complaint

Cars "roaring up" from a seaside gravel pit in Esquimalt to Munro Avenue in the early morning with lights flashing are blamed by Mr. E. Ord, 1114 Munro, for breaking the sleep of residents of that area.

In a letter to Esquimalt council Tuesday night, he suggested that gates leading to the pit should be closed at sunset.

Municipal engineer John Graeme told the council that since the complaint the gates have been locked at all times and added that persons requiring to use the road as an access to the beach could get the key when needed.

Other council business included a thank you from Reeve A. C. Wurtele to the council and the people of Esquimalt for making it possible for him to receive one of the Coronation medals which have been issued in this district recently.

DELEGATION HEARD

Following a description of drainage difficulties in that neighborhood council asked the engineer to prepare estimates for curb construction for consideration.

Council also approved a grant of $100 to the Esquimalt PTA in keeping with precedents for Halloween. The money has been used previously to pay for a huge childrens' party at the High School.

This year, however, as Halloween falls on a Saturday, school board would not permit use of the school as no janitors are available.

The PTA explained that the grant would be spent to provide a candy treat for the youngsters instead.

Admirals Road Closure Urged By Councillor

Admirals Road should be closed off altogether until some action is taken by the federal government to repair the ravages of heavy national defense department traffic, said Esquimalt councillor G. K. Sammon Tuesday night.

"I will keep on insisting it be closed unless we get some action," he said.

His remarks followed receipt by council of a complaint from Mrs. A. J. Porter at 624 Admirals that passing buses are shaking the foundations of her home, cracking her plaster in spite of new posts put in her basement.

WORD FOR BCER

Reeve A. C. Wurtele told the council that the offensive traffic was more department of national defense than BCER.

The road has been a sore spot with municipal officials for a long time. They feel that the government should share in rebuilding it, and the reeve explained that he has suggested a conference on the matter with provincial and federal authorities.

Municipal engineer John Graeme submitted that the road surface is not broken at the point near the Porter home and is merely "undulating," a trouble that could be erased with scarifying and repaving.

But council opposed any improvements until the entire section of road is rebuilt. Action was delayed pending the arrangement of the government talks.

Five Provincial Ministers Here For Convention

Ministers in the governments of five Canadian provinces are in Victoria for the 34th annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association in the Empress Hotel, today until Saturday.

The other provincial ministers are: Hon. E. S. Spencer, minister of public works, Newfoundland, and president of the CGRA; Hon. M. D. Rawding, minister of highways, Nova Scotia; Hon. Gordon E. Taylor, minister of highways, Alberta, and Hon. J. T. Douglas, minister of highways and transportation, Saskatchewan.

15-Month Stay in Canada To Yield Book About People

An Englishman who is going to write a book about Canada—"I shall be here 15 months . . . not the usual two or three weeks"—is now in Victoria.

Remarkably fresh and alert after 8,000 miles of motoring in two months, Ken Johnstone, a British newspaper executive, will be here for a week before leaving for Kitimat.

He has been commissioned by McGraw-Hill Ltd., publishers, to write a book about the people of Canada, of whom, he says, "there is a woeful lack of understanding in England."

His methods of "meeting the people" appear to be most effective. He has introductions to prominent Canadians in all parts of the country and an engaging personality which seems to make him welcome everywhere he goes.

Transport could have been a problem had he not known a senior director of a certain British motor car company.

Two months ago in Toronto this company was kind enough to lend him a small car during the time he was in Canada in return for certain favors.

TALK IS RENTAL

He is fulfilling his obligations by making commercial broadcasts at various radio stations, mentioning the name of the car once or twice each time.

Since he got the car he has driven as far east as Prince Edward Island, extensively in North Ontario and then right across to the west coast.

An asset has been his scouting experiences in England. Only 35 now, he was once assistant county commissioner for Northumberland and at a number of gatherings in England met Canadian Scouts.

He was able to renew many of these acquaintanceships at a recent scout jamboree in Ottawa — in fact there are few towns in Canada where he does not know or know of at least one of the leading scouts.

ISLAND GROUP GOOD

"I was tremendously impressed with the Vancouver Island contingent," he said, "I saw them disembark at Ottawa after nearly a week on the train and from their appearance you might have thought they had only been traveling a few hours . . . they were so smart."

Before coming to Canada at the end of June, he spent three months in New York studying commercial television and, incidentally, spending most of his dollar allowance.

To meet expenses he has spoken to 10 Canadian clubs on "I Had to See Canada" and has taken odd jobs along the way.

"Very valuable experience," said Mr. Johnstone, "but it was there that I began to think that unskilled labor was overpaid in certain parts of Canada."

"I don't think I was any less efficient than any of the other workers, but the wage I was getting seemed to me fantastic in comparison with what a man doing the same job would get in England," he added.

He has already driven through many parts of British Columbia and thinks that in addition to the most beautiful scenery in Canada, the province has the best-cared-for roads.

A MESSAGE FROM . . .

HON. PHILIP A. GAGLARDI

THE GOVERNMENT OF THE PROVINCE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS
Victoria, British Columbia
October 14, 1953

Dear Mr. Delegate:

On behalf of the Government and the people of British Columbia, I should like to extend a warm welcome to members of the Canadian Good Roads Association from all parts of Canada who are in Victoria for their 34th Annual Convention.

A nos compatriotes de la langue francaise, un bienvenu special. C'est un grand plaisir pour la Colombie Britannique que vous etes venus nous visiter.

The last time a meeting of the CGRA was held in British Columbia was in 1922. Our welcome is doubly cordial due to your protracted absence.

The program of the 34th convention embraces a variety of subjects with an appeal to many diverse groups within the Association. The talks and discussions touch upon some of the most important highway problems of the day. A thorough airing of these problems will be of great interest and benefit to all.

I should like to invite you, on behalf of the Department of Public Works, to learn and profit from the serious business of the convention, and to enjoy the facilities for recreation that this province affords.

May this meeting fulfill your highest expectations and, indeed, be a milestone in your Association's progress. May it also be the means of forging lasting bonds of friendship between members and associates.

Sincerely yours,
P. A. Gaglardi
Minister

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

A finesse is a finesse is a finesse, as Gertrude Stein might have written if she had ever taken up contract bridge. Nevertheless, all finesses aren't equal. It may be important to try your finesses in the correct order, as South discovered in today's hand.

West opened the five of hearts, and declarer quite properly put up dummy's queen of hearts to win the trick. South heaved a discreet sigh of relief and counted his tricks; two hearts, a spade, a diamond, and four clubs. One additional trick was needed for the contract.

South saw that there were lots of finessing possibilities, but he couldn't tell one from another without a formal introduction. Hence he got to his hand with a club and tried his luck at finessing the queen of diamonds.

It didn't work. East won with the king of diamonds and returned a heart. South held up the ace of hearts until the third round, but this did him no good. He had to try a spade finesse in the attempt to make his ninth trick, and West took the queen of spades and the rest of the hearts to set the contract.

South made his mistake when he put all of his eggs into the one basket of the diamond finesse. The correct line of play allows South to break more eggs—and to make his contract.

After winning the first trick in dummy with the queen of hearts, declarer should lead the jack of spades and let it ride for a finesse. This loses to West's queen, and West leads the king of hearts. South holds off the second round of hearts, but wins the third.

Now South tries the diamond finesse. This also loses, but South isn't beaten yet. He can still get to dummy with a club and try a second spade finesse. When that finesse succeeds, he makes his contract.

There are three finesses altogether, two in spades and one in diamonds. South makes his contract if any one of the three succeeds, provided he begins by forcing out the spade entry to West's long heart suit. But if South tries the diamond finesse first, he can no longer rely on just one successful spade finesse.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Be open-minded in discussions with shrewd associate who realizes your ability in understanding financial trends. Follow definite arrangements whereby both of you may gain.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Keep your mind and your fingers working doggedly to separate items of expenses in every day matters. This keeps you from confusing real responsibilities with superfluous obligations that are burdensome.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Your personal appearance brings you favor from associate who has an important invitation that requires you look your best. Be prepared for entertainment, business deals. Have fun!

LEO (July 22 to August 21)—Attending to all the little affairs at home, wardrobe, cleaning, supplies, etc., releases very valuable time you need later when conditions break in your favor.

VIRGO (August 22 to September 22)—To bring out your charm, attractiveness and glamour, attend to beauty treatments, haircuts, etc. P.M., have fun at inexpensive pleasures. Be happy.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)—Another day to keep your nose to the grindstone, making home and surroundings more attractive and the family more aware of your affection, even if it means giving up some personal pleasure.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)—You are right to be preoccupied with the way you are getting along with close companions in business or in family, personal life. P.M., relax after completing agreements, correspondence.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)—Get off alone and take a good look at yourself, for now you can see the beneficial results you have obtained and also the flaws that require attention right now. Keep working.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Definite, determined friend aware of your great ability and high degree of intelligence gives you a helping hand in the attainment of your desires, with no "strings" attached. Accept.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Forget entertainment outlets and concentrate upon the irksome but necessary ways to secure more acclaim. This requires quiet talks with experts who are in a mood to help.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Listen to experienced newcomer in your life who knows how to judge values and policies accurately. Get the benefit of his or her advice on how to get your hopes and wishes manifested.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN THURSDAY . . .

Thursday's child is one of those very sharp and shrewd youngsters who should be taught very early in life to have a realization of abundance. This chart is good for occupations requiring much understanding of money, possessions, taxation or research work and exploration. This child should be taught the value of money when young and be given courses in practical matters. It is best to be prepared for early retirement so that the good things in life can be long enjoyed.

Island Authors In Collaboration Achieve Success

President T. A. Willis said two collaborations involving four members of the branch were published in a recent issue of the Canadian Home Journal. Mrs. G. Lussie and Mrs. C. Knox wrote "Annie's Daughter" and G. A. Glay and Mrs. R. Murray, "Miracle at Andover."

In the forthcoming issue of the Canadian Poetry Magazine there will be work by two branch members, Mrs. Mary Carr Wright and Miss M. Eugenie Perry.

Mrs. Vera Scott's story, "Independence," appeared in Week end, the Aug. 29 issue of the Victoria Times.

Three speakers were heard, Mrs. Florence Mayberry, Baha'i lecturer of Santa Paula, Calif., Mrs. M. C. Wright, branch secretary, and Mrs. Claire Yardley.

Solid Opposition Fails to Shake Government Plan for Toll Bridges

The government's plan to establish an authority to build toll bridges and highways in B.C. was approved in principle by a 25 to 15 vote in the Legislature just before 1 a.m. today.

He said there may be some justification for toll bridges in emergency measures, but stressed in a wealthy province like B.C. it should be the aim to establish free roads, bridges and ferries.

Tolls would penalize certain areas which have been waiting for years for bridges and roads. How can they be told they must now pay for theirs through tolls when others had their improvements paid for from general revenue, he asked.

Bruce Brown (Lib., Prince Rupert) echoed Mr. Webster's statements. He said nobody wants to go back to the early days of Lower Canada in Quebec and pay tolls.

The MLA, noting the bill provides for appointment of three to seven members to the toll authority, said B.C. has too many boards now.

"Political plums," interjected Tony Gargrave (CCF, Mackenzie).

"Of course," replied Mr. Brown.

Mr. Gargrave said the bill admitted the government's failure to make its pay-as-you-go policy work.

Agriculture Minister Ken Kiernan, referring to opposition statements that the Aggasiz-Rosedale bridge will be the first built by the new authority, said the people have wanted a bridge there for 40 years. They don't mind tolls, he said.

Robert Strachan (CCF, Cowichan-Newcastle) deplored the fact the authority would have power to reconstruct as well as construct highways.

"It's no more than an attempt to cut down the provincial debt," said Leo Nimsick (CCF, Cranbrook). "But actually it won't do that. Even if the debt is applied to the authority, it's still provincial debt."

He asked why Premier Bennett favored tolls now when in 1942 he was against them. He read a newspaper clipping to that effect.

DANGEROUS DELEGATION

P. A. Gibbs (Lib., Oak Bay) said it's dangerous to delegate the authority of the House.

Premier Bennett explained that the government will subsidize every project annually to the extent of 2½ per cent of the original capital indebtedness.

If a $4,000,000 project, he explained, the government would pay each year $80,000 from consolidated revenue.

Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi said the government is not anxious to build toll bridges "but the people are demanding it."

Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) said the government had the power in a 1950 act to build the Aggasiz-Rosedale Bridge.

More than 4 millions. Oil is used in the furnaces or heaters of more than a million Canadian homes—better than one in four.

Oil plays a large and growing part in our everyday living. How many of these questions about it can you answer?

Far down the list a few years ago, Canada now ranks eighth. Except for a group of Middle East countries—Iran, Iraq, Kuwait and Saudi Arabia—only the U.S., Venezuela and Russia have larger reserves.

Last year 165 million barrels—about one gallon each day for every man, woman and child. Canada uses twice as much oil as she did six years ago.

In the past 10 years, the average wholesale prices of all commodities have risen 85 per cent. Have prices of Esso gasolines risen—

Energy produced at Niagara Falls each day is equal to that in 9,000 barrels of crude oil. Prairie oil fields now produce energy equal to how many "Niagaras"— 2? 11? 18?

Taxes take a big part of a company's income. How would you say Imperial's 1952 tax bill compared with its dividends? Was it—greater? less? about the same?
Taxes were $55 millions, about 2½ times dividends to shareholders. For each dollar of income, Imperial paid 10¢ in taxes and 4¢ in dividends. Tax figures do not include gasoline sales tax paid at the pump.

A two-way contest has developed for the presidency of the Victoria Constituency Association of the Social Credit League.

Delegates in Empress Traffic Jam

The usually dignified lobby of Empress Hotel was so crowded this morning that traffic signs had to be installed to control flow of movement of more than 600 delegates and vistors as the 34th annual convention of Canadian Good Roads Association opened. Convention will continue through Friday, closing with a fishing derby Saturday. Three Quebec delegates good-naturedly refused to criticize sign in English: left to right, Roland Jodoin and E. Dagenais, Montreal; A. Pigeon, Quebec City. (More pictures, stories, Pages 15 and 21. Times photo.)

Club Drinkers May Pay New Liquor Tax First

Strong Wave Of Protest Predicted

At Vancouver today a spokesman for the B.C. Restaurant Association voiced a protest against the government's proposal to impose a 10 per cent tax on liquor by the glass.

Commenting on the bill introduced in the Legislature Tuesday, calling for a 10 per cetn tax on liquor sold in beer parlors, night clubs and cabarets, Phil Edgcumbe, executive secretary of the B.C. section of the Canadian Restaurant Association, said:

"I don't see how we can absorb the tax when we have to pay retail prices for liquor . . . It'll certainly keep people away." He also predicted the tax would prompt "plenty of protests."

VARIED COMMENT

Mayor Claude Harrison and Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt welcomed the proposal but Reeve Joseph Casey of Saanich said he wasn't sure whether it was good or bad, and Reeve Arcihe Gibbs of Oak Bay said he couldn't offer comment because he didn't know the first thing about it.

He said the resulting revenue would be "welcomed heartily" by the city.

He reiterated his earlier opinion that the liquor outlets would be used mainly by the rich but the glass was going to be high added: "The price for drinks by anyway, a few cents extra won't hurt. And after all, liquor is a luxury."

"My main criticism of the act is that it does not provide for bonding of licensees. Those who obtain licenses should have to post a stiff bond to guarantee they run their premises properly."

Reeve Wurtele said the tax would be welcomed by municipalities but was not overly enthusiastic about it.

"I agree with the mayor," said Reeve Wurtele, "it's nice to be able to look forward to a little extra revenue. But this is not the sort of revenue a municipality can bank on for all times."

He felt restrictions and regulations led to abuses.

Reeve Gibbs said he could offer no comment on the liquor tax.

Mr. Gibbs, who is a member of the Legislature, said from his office at the Legislative Buildings: "I don't know the first thing about this bill. It was introduced last night at about 8.45 along with a lot of other bills and the House sat until quarter to one. This morning I didn't have a chance to study it because I had to attend a committee meeting."

M. F. Hunter, president of the Greater Victoria Citizens' Association, said the government's proposal was an acknowledgement that it expected difficulty in controlling and regulating outlets. He felt what money a municipality derived from the tax would have to be devoted to extra police requirements.

LIQUOR TAX HIGHLIGHTS

1. A 10 per cent tax on beer, wine and hard liquor sold in restaurants, cocktail lounges and night clubs.
2. A 10 per cent tax on food, cigarettes and incidentals, in addition to liquor, purchased in night clubs and cabarets.
3. Purchases in beer parlors and liquor stores unaffected.
4. Proprietory clubs and membership clubs now in existence may be first to pay new tax.
5. Half proceeds from new tax to be distributed among municipalties who vote for retail outlets. "Dry" municipalities get nothing.

10% on Each Drink Planned Under Government's Scheme

By GORDON FORBES

British Columbians will pay a new 10 per cent sales tax on drinks by the glass under the province's new liquor system.

Half the proceeds from the tax will be distributed to municipalities which have voted for liquor outlets. "Dry" municipalities will get none.

The surprise legislation providing for the tax was introduced in the Legislature Tuesday night by Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who is acting finance minister.

The tax will be charged on beer, wine and hard liquor sold in restaurants, cocktail lounges and night clubs.

The 10 per cent tax also will be charged on "all purchases" in licensed premises which provide entertainment (cabarets and night clubs) in lieu of the 3 per cent sales tax.

This means the tax will be charged on drinks, meals, cigarettes, etc., in such premises.

The tax, as far as night clubs and cabarets are concerned, will be imposed only during the time when entertainment or dancing facilities are provided.

May Be Law by Week-End

First people to feel the pinch of the tax will be those who belong to so-called proprietory clubs or membership clubs.

These clubs must start charging the 10 per cent tax on beer, wine and hard liquor as soon as the bill becomes law which may be the end of this week, unless the government, by regulation, decides to postpone the effective date.

A round of drinks for four people at the same price, instead of costing $1.40, will cost $1.54.

If a total bill in a night club for drinks, meals and incidentals came to $25, the tax would increase the bill to $27.50.

This is because the tax in night clubs and cabarets, and any place providing entertainment and dancing facilities, applies to the total bill—everything purchased in the establishment. In other establishments such as restaurants and cocktail lounges the tax is charged only on the cost of the liquor.

The tax may have the effect of wiping out cover charges or entrance fees in night spots.

It is expected many night clubs will abolish the charge and make up for it in prices inside. Ending admission charges will entice more people into the night spots, proprietors believe.

This means the government will lose the 17½ per cent amusement tax revenue on the entrance fee, but will make it up on tax revenue from sales of liquor and food inside.

To Replace 3% Sales Tax

Under the new system, liquor outlets will not pay a 3 per cent sales tax on their purchases from the Liquor Control Board.

But the outlets will act as collectors for the government by charging the 10 per cent sales tax on liquor sold in their establishments.

Under the new liquor act they can force a local option plebiscite on new liquor outlets simply by asking for it.

But will they take such action when they may be throwing away sorely needed revenue which would accrue from the 10 per cent tax?

It's a fairly sure bet the municipalities, whose coffers are in a depressed state, will be reluctant to place any obstacle in the way of more outlets—and more revenue.

All this, adds up to a rocky road for the temperance interests who will find it much more difficult to convince municipal councils they should oppose more outlets.

Anti-liquor groups, however, will welcome the new tax if it acts as a deterrant to excessive drinking.

The tax will make drinks quite costly. Drinking by the glass, experience has shown, is an expensive way to imbibe anyway. One reason is that retail outlets must purchase their liquor from the Liquor Control Board at retail prices. Another factor contributing to high costs is that regulations require premises to be of a high standard, necessitating considerable financial outlay by proprietors.

It all adds up to the cost, and the 10 per cent tax will be just another boost.

One of the reasons for the new tax, it was explained unofficially, was to help municipalities offset the extra costs they face in policing outlets.

The tax is brought in as an amendment to the Social Security and Municipal Aid Tax Act.

The bill also provides for changing of the act's title to "An Act to Provide for the Imposition and Collection of a Tax on the Purchase and Use of Tangible Personal Property to Provide Funds in Aid of Social Services." In short, the Social Services Tax Act.

Reds Received U.S. Army Data McCarthy Says

Top Secret Documents 'Turned Up' In Russian-Occupied Germany

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy said today a number of top-secret army documents dealing with radar and others matters "turned up" in the Russian section of Germany and "were used by the Communists."

This followed a statement by Senator Everett M. Dirksen (Rep., Ill.), Tuesday, that 26 of 57 top secret documents missing from the army signal corps radar laboratory at Fort Monmouth, N.J., were found in the Russian zone.

In Washington, the army said it had no information on the finding of any such papers in Germany.

"We have completely convincing testimony that some of those documents on radar and other matters did turn up in East Berlin, but as to the number, I will never comment," McCarthy told reporters prior to today's sub-committee session.

Radar is used as part of a defense network to detect the approach of enemy aircraft.

Two of five civilian technical experts who were employed at Fort Monmouth were scheduled for questioning by the sub-committee today.

They are Hyam Gerber Yamins, a radar specialist who was assigned by the army signal corps to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as a liaison officer, and Harold Ducore, an electronics engineer.

Defense Secretary Charles Wilson, asked Tuesday in Washington whether he thought espionage was involved at Fort Monmouth or whether the matter concerned security leaks, declared:

SNACKS TAX DUE TO DIE BY WEEK-END

By next week people who eat in restaurants will escape the three per cent sales tax on meals up to $1. Now they pay on everything over 50 cents.

The increase in tax exemption on meals is contained in amendments to the Sales Tax Act introduced in the Legislature Tuesday night, and is expected to become law when the House prorogues this week-end.

Two Children Among 44 Air Crash Victims

FRANKFURT, Germany (CP)—A Belgian airliner crashed in flames just after takeoff from here today and all 44 persons aboard were killed.

There had been earlier reports that the twin-engined Convair was carrying 48 persons. But the operators, Sabena Airlines, announced in Brussels, that there were 44 persons—40 passengers and four crew—aboard when it crashed near the village of Kelsterbach, about two miles from Frankfurt airport.

Two children were reported to have been among the passengers.

DIED INSTANTLY

The crash and fire brought almost instant death to those aboard.

An eyewitness said the plane crashed and burned shortly after clearing the runway. The plane was bound for Brussels. It had arrived here earlier from Salsburg, Austria.

The crash was not far from the spot where a Dutch airlines plane went down March 22, 1952, killing 45 in Germany's worst air disaster.

Non-Aggression Guarantee Said Ready for Reds

LONDON (UP)—A note to be sent to Moscow this week-end by the United States, Great Britain and France will make the first formal offer to discuss guarantees to Russia against any future German aggression, authoritative sources said today.

The note was drafted here by deputies. It will be sent to Russia after it is finally approved by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Secretary Anthony Eden and French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault at their meeting starting here Friday.

The French cabinet approved the text of the note today, a United Press Paris dispatch said, and at the same time agreed to shelve for the present the idea of any pressure for a five-power conference including Communist China.

The anti-aggression guarantee will highlight the Western note, which is in reply to a Soviet note of Sept. 28 on the question of holding a meeting of foreign ministers on German and Austrian treaties.

WAS CHURCHILL PLAN

It would be the first official offer coming out of a proposal first made by Prime Minister Winston Churchill last May for a new "Locarno" type non-aggression pact to assure Russian security against a European army including German troops.

Russian Intervention May Calm Trieste Row

By HELEN FISHER

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UP)—Russia's intervention in the Trieste crisis may lead to a friendly solution of the issue between Marshal Tito and the United States and Britain, an authoritative informant said today.

It may boomerang and lead to a solution outside the UN.

Yugoslav leaders do not want Russia in the Trieste dispute and they still want to co-operate with the West.

It is still indicated here, as it was before the present crisis, that Tito would be willing to let Italy have effective control of Trieste city and possibly of all of Zone A which the United States and Britain have decided to give that country.

TENSION MOUNTS

But Tito would want firm guarantees against further Italian expansion, and would want a settlement which would not appear to mean a Yugoslav diplomatic defeat.

Tension still mounted here as regards Italy. The official news agency Tanjug asserted that two Italian armored units moved up to the border of Zone A Tuesday night in the Gorizia region.

(In Rome the Italian foreign ministry emphatically denied the report as a "deliberate falsification by Yugoslav authorities and an attempt to establish a cover for their own activity".)

Vacation Over, Royal Family Returns to London

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen, the Duke of Edinburgh, their two children and Princess Margaret returned by train to London today at the end of their summer vacation in the Scottish Highlands.

The Queen's first major engagement is the state opening of Parliament Nov. 3, at which she will deliver the Speech From the Throne.

Eskimo Halfback Drafted by Army

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimo halfback sensation, Billy Vessels from Oklahoma, is scheduled to report to a U.S. army draft board at Great Falls, Mont., for a physical examination Nov. 27—one day before the Grey Cup final in Toronto.

Presumably, if Eskimos entered the Grey Cup final, Vessels would take his physical Nov. 27 and then be flown east to Toronto for the classic the following day. (See sport page story.)

Strike Vote Sunday In Ontario Pulp Mills

TORONTO (BUP)—A strike vote among 15,000 pulp and paper workers was ordered today for next Sunday as a six-month wage and contract dispute between 13 companies and 11 AFL unions neared a head.

The unions demanded a five per cent wage boost and a five-point program of improvements in other contract terms. Ontario mills have a 40-hour week and a base rate of $1.41 an hour.

DRESSEN QUITS DODGERS OVER CONTRACT ROW

BROOKLYN (AP) — Manager Charlie Dressen and the Brooklyn Dodgers split today over terms of a new contract and the peppery pilot who guided the Dodgers to the National League pennants the last two years announced: "I won't manage the team next year." Dressen, 55, said he had asked originally for a three-year contract but would be willing to settle for two. He could have held his job but on a one-year term basis only. Police Fight Deranged Father in Midnight Fog

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 30-year-old father of two children was captured in a midnight struggle on a bridge girder 200 feet above the entrance to Burrard Inlet.

Police reports disclosed today how two officers and a sailor fought with the man on the span of Lions Gate Bridge, choked with the heaviest fog of the season.

Constable Don Brown and Cecil Paul answered a radio call to the bridge just before midnight Tuesday, but were unable to spot a suspect who had been reported "acting suspiciously."

Paul, who holds the George Medal for bravery, went to the north end of the span, and Brown took the south end. They walked toward the centre.

Near the span's centre, 200 feet above the water, Brown saw the man outside the bridge railing, standing on a girder. Approaching swiftly and silently, he threw an arm around the man's throat and shouted for Paul.

The suspect fought back and the two police officers were unable to haul him to safety until a naval reservist, T. A. Bradfield, ran to their aid.

The man, who told police he was upset over domestic difficulties, was held for mental examination.

Gay . . . colorful . . . fantastic! These are words to describe Nagasaki during Ot-Suwa-Matsori, one of the most distinctive religious festivals in Japan held Oct. 7, 8 and 9 each year.

Bessie

And no westerner, whether located in Japan permanently, or just a visitor, wishes to miss it.

In the narrow lanes of open faced shops slender bamboo trees have been placed, their delicate branches meeting in an archway overhead. Lanterns hang on long poles. Miniature paper parasols deck the street lights.

And the drums beat incessantly. Calling every one to forget dignity and follow "Mikoshi," the gold and red portable shrines, drawn by young people of Nagasaki, dressed in medieval costumes of rich silks and satins, their faces painted white, with touches of black and gold.

We've been following the drums for two days now. Vancouverite Mary Russell and I. We've danced a bit . . . tried to sing . . . we've smiled and nodded . . . and even talked . . . and we've been accepted as the people of Nagasaki accept all "foreigners" who crowd their city at festival time.

Pro-Italians Invade Yugoslav Office

By CHARLES RIDLEY

TRIESTE (UP)—Violent street fighting broke out tonight when Italian youths broke into the offices of the Yugoslav commercial mission in the heart of Trieste.

Elsewhere in the city 2,000 "independentists"—advocates of independence for the Trieste area—clashed violently in a street brawl with 1,000 pro-Italians.

Across Street From British Post

The Italian youth who invaded the Yugoslav commercial mission offices dragged all its furnishings into the street and broke its furniture into club-length pieces before they were driven off by riot police.

The raid on the Yugoslav offices was carried out almost under the noses of British military police who have a command post across the street—about 75 feet from the Yugoslav commercial mission.

Near the span's centre, 200 feet above the water, Brown saw the man outside the bridge railing, standing on a girder. Approaching swiftly and silently, he threw an arm around the man's throat and shouted for Paul.

The suspect fought back and the two police officers were unable to haul him to safety until a naval reservist, T. A. Bradfield, ran to their aid.

The man, who told police he was upset over domestic difficulties, was held for mental examination.

Reds Received U.S. Army Data McCarthy Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy said today a number of top-secret army documents dealing with radar and others matters "turned up" in the Russian section of Germany and "were used by the Communists."

This followed a statement by Senator Everett M. Dirksen (Rep., Ill.), Tuesday, that 26 of 57 top secret documents missing from the army signal corps radar laboratory at Fort Monmouth, N.J., were found in the Russian zone.

In Washington, the army said it had no information on the finding of any such papers in Germany.

"We have completely convincing testimony that some of those documents on radar and other matters did turn up in East Berlin, but as to the number, I will never comment," McCarthy told reporters prior to today's sub-committee session.

Radar is used as part of a defense network to detect the approach of enemy aircraft.

Two of five civilian technical experts who were employed at Fort Monmouth were scheduled for questioning by the sub-committee today.

They are Hyam Gerber Yamins, a radar specialist who was assigned by the army signal corps to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as a liaison officer, and Harold Ducore, an electronics engineer.

Defense Secretary Charles Wilson, asked Tuesday in Washington whether he thought espionage was involved at Fort Monmouth or whether the matter concerned security leaks, declared:

Visitors Follow Drums To Join Historic Fun

Bessie Forbes, Times Women's Editor writes of the gaiety and color of Japan during Ot-Suwa-Matsori Nagasaki's notable religious festival. In Japan for a long visit to gather material for Times readers Miss Forbes is penetrating the very heart of this ancient people to tell their story.

By BESSIE FORBES

Gay . . . colorful . . . fantastic! These are words to describe Nagasaki during Ot-Suwa-Matsori, one of the most distinctive religious festivals in Japan held Oct. 7, 8 and 9 each year.

And no westerner, whether located in Japan permanently, or just a visitor, wishes to miss it.

In the narrow lanes of open faced shops slender bamboo trees have been placed, their delicate branches meeting in an archway overhead. Lanterns hang on long poles. Miniature paper parasols deck the street lights.

And the drums beat incessantly. Calling every one to forget dignity and follow "Mikoshi," the gold and red portable shrines, drawn by young people of Nagasaki, dressed in medieval costumes of rich silks and satins, their faces painted white, with touches of black and gold.

We've been following the drums for two days now. Vancouverite Mary Russell and I. We've danced a bit . . . tried to sing . . . we've smiled and nodded . . . and even talked . . . and we've been accepted as the people of Nagasaki accept all "foreigners" who crowd their city at festival time.
